Mr. Coolidge Says No.
Full Bootleg Supplies.
Good News for Gamblers.
Mukden, Moscow Make Up.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FORMER PRESIDENT COOLIDGE decides that he will not be a candidate for United States senator. And this time nobody will ask whether he means it. In his case, language is not made to conceal thought.

If ex-President Coolidge runs for office again, and probably he will, it will be for an office bigger than a senatorship.

HAPPY Mr. Coolidge, he got out in time to dodge the Wall Street crash. He left the people rolling over and over in money, prosperity, higher wages and lower cost of living.

If times get worse and it "looks like a Democrat," there will come a few brief words from New England, and in will go Mr. Coolidge again, elected by the people FOR THE SECOND TIME.

BOOTLEGGERS announce plenty of liquor to supply holiday demands, "good quality, prices reasonable." The "excellent, uncut stuff" comes from Miami, Fla., and Europe.

"Good" Scotch whisky costs $85 for 12 bottles. Rye $90 a dozen; sherry and port, $55 a dozen; champagne $100 a dozen.

Absinthe, worst of all drinks next to American sure-death bootleg whisky, is scarce this year.

EXCELLENT Christmas news for bootleggers and professional gamblers is the plan of New York state to spend millions of public money making Saratoga Springs "a great health resort."

It will be healthy for professional gamblers and bootleggers, less healthy for the fools that patronize them.

IT is amusing to see an intelligent state gaily spending public money to increase property values and business profits for criminals.

That's a sample of "America's superior civilization."

NEW YORK STATE is proceeding also with the building of a prison which will hold 2,000 criminals and cost twelve million dollars.

The nation and the individual states seem to have plenty of money, the nation up to ten thousand millions to help other nations fight a foreign war, New York state other millions to build up property values for gamblers and provide comfortable prisons for criminals.

LATER perhaps the richest nation in the world and the richest state will find the money to build decent homes for men and women that do not go to prison, giving those men and women an opportunity to rent them or buy them on reasonable terms, and freeing them from taxation.

MUKDEN and Moscow have reached an agreement and the Chinese-Russian war is off for the present. Russia is the winner.

The Kellogg pact did not have a chance to do its benevolent work in that case. In fact, Russia snubbed the Kellogg pact, asking, not unreasonably, what business it was of ours to tell Russia what to do in China? Russia had not told us what to do in Nicaragua or Haiti.

Our provincial statesmen are slow to recognize that Russia is an important nation, even without the Czars.

A FRENCH newspaper says the French government will insist absolutely, in connection with naval reduction and disarmament discussion in London, that everything proposed must first be passed upon by the League of Nations.

THUS, on our trip over there, we find ourselves in the League of Nations, or at least our suggestions won't amount to anything unless the League of Nations approves them.

We seem to be more successful managing things for the United States here than managing them for Europe abroad.

HELEN WILLS, good California girl, is now Mrs. Frederick S. Moody, Jr. He is a Californian, also.

That wedding interests Americans, all fond of Helen Wills and proud of her. It also interests eugenists who believe that a super-race could be built up by proper marriage selections.

FORTUNATELY they are wrong about that.

A super-race is being produced, not as basis of breeding horses or dogs, but produced by intense affection and concentration, which, more than anything else, decides the qualities of the child.

For other details read the first chapter of Tristam Shandy.

MODERN crime seems to be picking on policemen, in a heartless way, particularly in New York.

At a banquet tendered to a distinguished judge, attended by a brilliant collection of professional criminals, whose names were afterward supplied by the New York chief of police, one

CHRISTMAS WEATHER IDEAL

Snow to Stay, With Mercury Around 30 Degrees Here; Shopping Crowds Large

Ideal Christmas weather, with snow-mantled countryside and bracing temperatures, was predicted for tomorrow by Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

There is little likelihood of rain melting the five-inch blanket of snow covering this region, the forecaster said. More light snow may fall. Skies will be mostly cloudy with the mercury around the 30-degree mark, according to Brotzman.

Unusually large shopping crowds were bringing to a close a record Christmas buying season; charitable organizations and benevolent individuals were better prepared than ever before to assure a touch of Christmas for every unfortunate brought to their attention and churches were undertaking elaborate devotional programs.

TRAFFIC NORMAL

Although snow fell throughout the Pittsburgh district last night and early today, holiday traffic moved normally.

Railroads entering the city reported that trains were running on time, with the exception of a few extra mail trains which in some cases were running about 25 minutes late.

TWO ASSASSINS' PLOTS FAIL

Associated Press.

Anarchists and extremists were alleged by police to have been behind two attempts at violence reported in Europe and South America today.

In Buenos Aires, an alleged Italian anarchist named Gualberto Marinelli fired several shots at President Yrigoyen. The president was unhurt, but several of his escort were wounded. The assassin was shot dead by guards.

From Brussels came reports of the discovery of a plot against the Belgian royal family, which was to have been bombed while en route to Rome to attend the marriage of Princess Marie Jose and Crown Prince Humbert in January.

Belgian police declared that anarchists and extremists were behind the plot. A young Italian anti-Fascist named Berneri was arrested. He is alleged to be an associate of the Italian student who attempted to assassinate Umberto at the tomb of the unknown soldier in Brussels October 24. Berneri is said to have made a full confession.

McMillen, said by police to have been driving the cab, took Bigham to Homeopathic Hospital, where he died from a fractured skull.

Mrs. Brown told police that Mrs Bigham left Pittsburgh yesterday for Philadelphia to visit relatives. It was her first vacation in 25 years.

TOWN HALL SITE ACTION SECRET

The County Planning Commission has taken definite action on the site for the proposed $6,000,000 town hall, but what it was is a deep secret.

The trend of gossip was to the effect that the Fifth avenue, Oakland, site had been selected.

The Fifth avenue site is bounded by Fifth avenue, Ruskin avenue, Tennyson avenue and Bigelow boulevard. Its sponsors contended at the Planning Commission hearings that it was the only suitable site on which the town hall could be built, including the cost of the property, for the $6,000,000 which has been provided.

The planners went into session at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They adjourned at 5:10 o'clock.

When the meeting adjourned James B. Sansom, secretary, said:

"The Planning Commission adopted a motion instructing me to communicate with the county commissioners informing them that they have made a decision and to ask the commissioners if they wish to meet in joint session with the Planning Commission or have this decision transmitted to them in writing."

Toward the close of the meeting Director of Public Works Norman F. Brown and several of his assistants were excused from the meeting and it is believed that the site selection was put to a vote.

"My work is finished with the Town Hall," Brown said. "The commission has reviewed all the 25 sites and narrowed the remainder down to seven."

Senator Fay toured the country on his first trip by airplane and on the second was a guest on a special train.

'MOTHER' JONES BELIEVED DYING

Labor Crusader, 99, Sinking Rapidly; Has Already Arranged Own Funeral

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—"Mother" Jones, the aged firebrand and ministering angel of a hundred bloody labor battles, is dying.

Propped up on pillows in a little farm house near Hyattsville, just outside the capital, labor's Joan of Arc is fighting her first losing battle—that against the grim reaper.

According to Dr. H. H. Howlett, her attending physician, "Mother" Jones may last for weeks or she may "go out suddenly."

Should "Mother" Jones live until May 1 next she will be 100 years old. Infirmities of age are given by Dr. Howlett as the reason for her condition. Her body is fast failing, but her mind is more active than ever.

ARRANGED OWN FUNERAL

The aged labor agitator has made her own funeral arrangements. High requiem mass will be held at St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church. The body will be shipped to Mt. Olive, Ill., where it will lie in state several days.

Burial will be in a little plot adjoining the Mt. Olive Cemetery, where five victims of a pitched battle between labor and police (on October 12, 1899) are buried. The cemetery authorities refused to let their property be "contaminated" with the bodies of workmen, so a fund was raised and a plot to accommodate six bodies purchased just outside the cemetery fence.

WOULD KEEP UP FIGHT

The sixth grave has been reserved these many years for "Mother" Jones. Several weeks ago she was given extreme unction by her parish priest, so critical was her condition. But she rallied.

1,241 ON LINER HELD BY FOG

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Fog prevented the liner Leviathan from docking last night and delayed the landing of 1,241 passengers and 6,286 sacks of Christmas mail.

Officials of the United States Line had made special arrangements with the United States health, customs, and immigration services to handle the passengers at midnight, so homebound travelers might reach their firesides for Christmas. The plan was abandoned when Commander Harold Cunningham radioed shortly after 11 p. m., saying he was still anchored in a thick fog off Ambrose Light.

The Leviathan reached the light at 8:50 p. m.

U. S. ASKS RUSS HUNT EIELSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24. — (INS.) — The unusual expedient of a branch of the government other than the State Department making an informal appeal to a foreign government was adopted by the Interior Department in seeking aid for Lieut. Ben Eielson, American aviator, and his mechanic, Earl Borland, missing six weeks in the far north.

Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, acting without the formal consent of the State Department, sent messages direct to the Soviet government at Moscow and to two Soviet icebreakers in Alaskan and Siberian waters.

The messages went through Tass Agency, the official Soviet telegraphic news organization.

The Wilbur action was preceded, however, it was revealed today, by a direct request to the Soviet government from Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, for aid in the search.

Borah cabled yesterday to M. Litvinoff, acting secretary of for-

HE BLAMES VISIONS IN DREAMS

Shoots Victim Four Times in Home, Then Is Captured After Wounding Himself

"I shot her because she haunted me in my dreams."

In these words, according to county detectives, Mike Koval, 29, of Baltimore, confessed to the slaying of Katherine Bosh, 17, in her home at Mine No. 2, near Castle Shannon, last night.

After sending four bullets into the girl's body, Koval, detectives were told, emptied his pistol into the floor in a hand-to-hand struggle with his victim's aged father and her 19-year-old brother, then fled from the house, beating himself on the head with the weapon in an apparent attempt to end his own life.

He was captured 15 minutes later by a neighbor, who, with the aid of Wassel Bosh and the 60-year-old father of the girl, held him until the arrival of County Detectives Frank Ritz and David Carlin.

MOTHER SOBS STORY

The prisoner was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for medical attention, following which he was placed in irons and a detective guard placed over him. His condition is not serious, according to hospital attaches, who said he is suffering from lacerations of the scalp and a slight wound in his chest, probably caused in a fall.

Mrs. Fannie Bosh lifted a tear-stained face to tell of events leading up to the shooting.

"Mike came often to visit us," she sobbed to Detective Ritz. "He kept company with Katie for maybe a year and a half. He visited us long before that, but since Katie grew up he come oftener—sometimes every week.

"Last night," she continued, "he came here and then went away. Tonight he come again.

Ohio's Fastest Packet Wins Race to Hospital

CINCINNATI, Dec. 24.—The river packet Chris Greene, reputed to be the fastest on the Ohio, has won another race—this time against probable death.

Her skipper, Capt. Chris Greene, was taken ill in Portsmouth, O., with a cold which threatened to become pneumonia.

Veteran of a score of river races, Capt. Greene ordered his crew on a 175-mile non-stop dash from Portsmouth to Cincinnati, so he might enter a hospital.

At the hospital today it was said Capt. Greene's illness was not serious, the impending pneumonia symptoms having been checked by prompt treatment which the dash downriver permitted him.

FEARFUL DRYS READY TO ATTACK HOOVER CRIME BOARD

ALARM FELT ON SECRET FINDINGS

Judge Prohibitionists Once Hailed Condemned for Illegal Rum Hunt Fight

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Growing curiosity in Congress as to what President Hoover's law enforcement commission is accomplishing or finding out—if anything—threatens to make the commission something of a political football.

For six months the commission has been sitting behind closed doors here, ostensibly delving into the mysteries of why the American people are the most lawless in the world, and seeking remedies therefor.

It has issued no reports on its progress, it has kept its procedure to itself, and it has rebuffed all inquiries intended to throw any light on its activities.

DRY LEADERS ALARMED

The radical prohibitionists in Congress are becoming alarmed. They first became suspicious when George W. Wickersham, the commission's chairman, wrote a letter to Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, last fall, intimating that the Volstead law might be improved by modification.

This feeling of alarm has now been heightened by the statement in Los Angeles of Judge Paul J. McCormick, another member of the commission, that the government itself was setting an example of lawlessness to its citizens by ruthlessly invading private homes in search of liquor, and in violation of the constitutional rights of the householder.

"A man's home is still his castle," said Judge McCormick, "and the practice of entering it in the cause of prohibition enforcement without recourse to legal procedure is wrong and should be abolished."

OPINION CHANGES

That sounds like "an anti-dry argument" to the radical prohibitionists, and they are accordingly and duly greatly perturbed.

Senator Harris (Dem.), of Georgia, already is out with a demand for Judge McCormick's scalp.

"His statement," said Harris, "shows that just what I feared was being done is being done. It really is an encouragement to violators of the law, and it shows Judge McCormick to be such a partisan against the prohibition law that, however honest he may be, he is unfitted to hold office on the commission."

At the time the commission was appointed, the prohibitionists generally hailed Judge McCormick's appointment with satisfaction, for no federal jurist has been more stern in handing out stiff sentences and padlocks than the Californian.

CURIOSITY GREAT

Harris also has sponsored a movement to cut off further funds for the commission until it makes some report to Congress on its activities and publishes its findings to date. In this movement he has enlisted considerable support, for the curiosity in Congress has become great. Senator Glass (Dem.) of Virginia; Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho, and other prominent Prohibitionists are inclined to go along with the Georgian in the demand for light.

Senator Harris was called to the White House today by Mr. Hoover. He would make no comment on the nature of the discussion.

cussion, but said it had been a "long talk" and that his relations with the President remained "cordial."

Senator Glass and Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, though strongly dry and backing Harris in his move to withhold funds from the commission, have refused to go along with him in his effort to remove McCormick. Glass said in a statement that the commission was appointed to get the facts, however displeasing they might be to one faction or the other.

TONIGHT'S AIR MAIL :-: By Quin Hall

PASSER OF BAD CHECKS SOUGHT

W. F. Glass, alias J. W. Brown, was being sought by constables today on a charge of passing worthless checks, said to be the outgrowth of the fleecing of several girls.

Constable F. O. Goddard said that his information shows Glass to be a "lady's man." His practice is to tell his "dates" that he is without money and then to ask them to cash a check, according the constable.

Several checks are being held by the constable for identification, and a complete investigation has been started to determine how many others he has issued.

Justice of the Peace A. A. Davis, of Emsworth, said he also has a charge against Glass for reckless driving, and that Glass will answer it at a hearing in Davis' office Tuesday.

GIRL RESCUED FROM FLAMES

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Fire in the Adam Struber drug store and apartment building early today caused damage estimated by firemen at $75,000 Greta Hughes, 24, an occupant of a third floor apartment, slid down a wire to an electric sign outside the second floor and was rescued from the sign by James Berry, Erie fight promoter.

Several stores adjoining the Adam Struber building were slightly damaged. Origin of the fire, which started in the basement, was not determined. The first two floors were badly damaged.

6 Suspects Taken In Negro's Slaying

Homicide detectives investigating the murder yesterday of Emmett Curtiss, a Negro, of Idlewild street, Homewood, alleged "number operator," today arrested six Negroes and held them for questioning.

Curtiss was shot to death in Hanlon street, North Side, by one of two Negroes who pulled alongside of him in an automobile.

Mayor Kline Gets Salary Raise Yule Gift

Mayor Charles H. Kline received a substantial Christmas gift when Council passed an ordinance yesterday increasing the mayor's salary from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

Mayor Kline will have a double celebration tomorrow. In addition to observing Christmas, he will also mark the anniversary of his birthday. Asked the year of his birth, the Mayor smiled:

Why bring that up?

Mayor Kline, who will broadcast a speech over KDKA at 10:30 tonight on "The Spirit of Christmas," today issued a Christmas message to Pittsburghers.

"May Pittsburgh's Christmas be characteristic of Pittsburgh's soul, which I believe is saturated with that gospel of goodwill brought to mankind by the Babe of Bethlehem," it said, adding a wish that "This yuletide season be fruitful and bountiful in blessings and that they will be showered on everyone, everywhere in every walk and condition of life."

IDEAL WEATHER PROMISED

cific states, was clothed for a "white Christmas" today.

Mild temperatures prevailed in general, but a continued and gentle snowfall was predicted for the affected regions.

A northwest wind carried a Christmas mantle to the Eastern states yesterday, enveloping New York and the seaboard in a heavy snow mantle. Another six inches was forecast for Gotham and vicinity by tonight.

Chicago and the Midwest received an additional two inches of snow between yesterday and today, although the comfortable temperatures that prevailed this morning had started the snow melting.

The southland, eager for the rarity of a white Christmas, seemed destined to be disappointed today. Rising temperatures predicted by weather experts for the Southern belt will presumably dissipate the snow blanket which has whitened the region for the last few days.

Family of Six Saved From Foodless Christmas

A cheerless Christmas, in a two-room summer cottage warmed by a little kerosene stove, faced five stockingless children in Oakmont until today when the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society rescued them from their plight.

Kind neighbors had been furnishing the little food that has graced the bare table for the tots and their mother, Mrs. Suzanne Davis, 24. Chicken pox, that in turn has been suffered by four of the children, kept her in the house, unable to seek work, for the past four weeks.

The father Clyde Davis, 47, a millwright, is serving 90 days in the workhouse. He began his sentence last Saturday when Humane Agent A. C. Brooks filed information charging drunkenness, cruelty and neglect. He was sentenced by Justice of the Peace W. E. Baird, of Oakmont.

In the little home on the Morris Camp plan were Evelyn, 8; Coloabelle, 4; Richard, 3; Ruth, 2, and little 11-month-old Twyla, who is so undernourished she weighs but 10 pounds.

Christmas prospects were brightened by the Humane Society placing the tots in the Juvenile Detention Home. A Yuletide dinner has been assured, and homes will be found for them later. Through Agent Brooks, the mother will receive assistance from the Salvation Army until she can obtain a position.

FIREMEN NAMED BY OVERBROOK TO CITY JOBS

Three Additional Policemen Also Appointed to Go on Payroll With Annexation

Twelve paid firemen and three additional policemen were hired by Overbrook Council last night. Action followed receipt of a letter from Public Safety Director James M. Clark, of Pittsburgh, asking for a list of names for the positions of police and firemen.

Council named 12 of the volunteer firemen and placed them on the borough payroll, which automatically makes them city firemen when that community becomes a part of Pittsburgh in January.

Council received Christmas presents from the borough employes. A watch was presented to John R. Herring, president of Council; a pair of gloves to Councilman E. P. Meier, and each councilman and Burgess Ernest E. Meier received a box of cigars.

Three ordinances were approved for minor street and sewer work. They included part of the Saw Mill Run boulevard and Main street, and the Saw Mill Run sanitary sewer.

'MOTHER' JONES DYING AT 99

firebrand has been failing for over two years.

Although she is bedridden, "Mother" Jones is fighting her last battle to the grim end.

While recounting many of the strikes in which she was a leading figure, she expressed the wish that she could leave her bed to help out the "beleaguered North Carolina textile workers."

DARING IN BATTLE

The most noted strikes in which she participated were the Pennsylvania anthracite and the Colorado and West Virginia mine strikes.

She said the West Virginia strikes of 1916 and 1917 were the worst she ever saw.

During the Pennsylvania troubles she donned men's clothes and worked in the mines to get firsthand information on "cheating" by the operators in the weighing of coal dug by the miners.

During the Colorado strike she was deported by the state militia upon orders of the governor. She merely took the next train back, she says, and told the governor to "go to hell."

WELL KNOWN HERE

"Mother" Jones is well known to Pittsburghers. During the steel strike in 1919 she came to Pittsburgh and made many speeches, for which she was jailed. In 1894 she toured the Pittsburgh district agitating for the striking coal miners.

Theater Patron's Eye Blackened By Woman

Harry S. Everett, 24, a waiter at the United States Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, wore a well-done black eye in Morals Court today. It had been done over by Mrs. Jane Klemmons, of 4 Central Court, who said she wouldn't mind blackening it again.

Everett had been arrested on complaint that he annoyed Mrs. Klemmons' 6-year-old daughter in a Liberty avenue theater. Mrs. Klemmons called Everett to the street, and while waiting for the police patrol in Liberty avenue, delivered an emphatic right to Everett's eye.

Everett was assessed $50 or 30 days. He said it was all a mistake.

POSTAL OFFICER JAILS FRIEND'S SON IN THEFT

Inspector Learns Trapped Youth's Father, Now Dead, Veteran of Mail Service

Inspector George V. Craighead, chief of the postoffice watchdogs of the Pittsburgh district, ruminates today over the vagaries of life.

Inspector Craighead late yesterday was summoned to the East Liberty station by Supt. Charles P. Cuppers, who reported traces of petty thievery from the unprecedented Christmas mails.

There were no suspects and the inspector mounted the lookout, lofty room with secret entrance, from which every man in the postoffice comes under sharp eyes.

A few minutes later Inspector Craighead made an arrest. He laid his hand upon a youth among those temporary Christmas employes making "extra money." When searched, he had more than $19 in his pockets and remnants of letters were found. He was jailed overnight and today after preliminary hearing before a United States commissioner, faces trial and penitentiary sentence.

His prisoner is Raymond Fox, 21, of 7501 Bennett street, two years out of Westinghouse High School, Inspector Craighead learned later.

Still later, he learned that the youth is the son of Samuel L. Fox, assistant superintendent of mails, dead about two years, whom Inspector Craighead had known in the government service for more than 25 years.

OIL MAN'S WILL AIDS CHARITY

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association will receive $50,000 from the estate of the late Percy L. Craig, president of the Freedom Oil Company, according to the will, filed today.

The bequest is included in the $100,000 set aside for charities and church organizations.

The estate is expected to total several million dollars. With the exception of the $100,000 the entire estate will go to the widow and children.

Bride in Texas, Groom In Ohio, Wed By Phone

WACO, Tex., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Homer Eakin were "honeymooning" today, although they haven't seen each other for two months.

They were married last night over long distance telephone, with Eakin in Cleveland and the bride, Miss Bethel Pharr, in Waco, Justice Audrey Marris, of Waco, performed the ceremony, while witnesses listened over extension telephones.

The ceremony took six minutes and the telephone bill was $9.50. "Considerably cheaper," said the bride, "than the railroad fare from Cleveland to Waco."

Eakin's witness was requested to sign an affidavit and mail it to Waco. A health certificate required by Texas laws, was wired to Justice Morris yesterday by Eakin.

The marriage is the culmination of a romance that started a Christmas dinner in Chilton, Tex., 14 years ago, when the bride was 6 years old and the groom 8.

The bride's mother, Mrs. W. S. Pharr, listening on one of the Waco extension phones, objected to issuing orders to her son-in-law immediately after the ceremony, while the bride, on another instrument, cried "Aw, Mother, hush and hang up."

Search Made for $50,000 Willed By Babe Ruth's Wife to Daughter

BOSTON, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—In an effort to trace a $50,000 "nest egg" mysteriously missing from the strong box of Mrs. Helen M. Ruth, deceased wife of "Babe" Ruth, New York Yankee "home run" king," an intensive investigation was planned today by the administrators of her estate.

Opening of the box, following a long litigation, revealed only jewelry valued at between $3,000 and $4,000.

Mrs. Ruth was believed to have left a sizeable fortune for little Dorothy Ruth. Her will, filed for probate some months after she was burned to death last January in the Watertown home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder, bequeathed $50,000 to Dorothy.

But when the deposit box was opened yesterday at a trust company here it was found to contain six pieces of jewelry and a bank book with an account of $1,000.

Attorney Judson Hannigan, acting as local agent for James J. Conlin, New York administrator of Mrs. Ruth's estate, indicated that steps would be taken to trace the missing estate. He said that Mrs. Ruth was known to have had in excess of $20,000 in cash on deposit.

Attorney Hannigan said the bank books showed that various amounts had been withdrawn from the bank, in some instances $5,000 at a time, between October, 1927, and the time of her death.

At the time of Mrs. Ruth's death, rumors were circulated that her safety deposit box contained a "valuable collection of jewels." The safety deposit box was found to contain three diamond rings tied together with a woman's handkerchief, and three bracelets.

Weather Conditions.

The Northwest disturbance is centered over Western Ontario this morning, and extends southward over the upper Mississippi Valley states. The disturbance that appeared off the Carolina coast yesterday is now off the coast of Maine. High barometer covers the South, with crests over Alabama and Mississippi and in the West over Utah. This distribution of pressure is producing considerable cloudy weather over the North, and mostly clear skies over the South. Light snow is falling over Western Pennsylvania and Ohio. There was a marked rise in temperature over the Plains states, while east of the Mississippi it is somewhat colder than yesterday.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 4.6 feet. Lock No. 7, 13.3; Pittsburgh, 13.9; Dam No. 4, 15.9; Dam No. 6, 11.3; Dam No. 9, 11.9, and Dam No. 12, 10.2. The dams are down. Light ice is running out of the Allegheny. Ice is thin and river only about one-fourth covered.

TEACHER QUEST NEARS CLOSE

East Liberty merchants are prepared for the biggest day in the teacher's popularity campaign which has been waging in that district. With only a few hours left in which to vote for their most popular teachers, school children from all parts of the city are said to be ready to visit East Liberty, cast their votes with Authorized East Liberty Merchants.

The balloting will close tonight. Valuable Philco DeLuxe radios will be awarded as Christmas gifts to 15 teachers Thursday.

Purchases of 10 cents or more in the store of an Authorized East Liberty Merchant make anyone eligible to vote. For every 10 cents of the purchase, one vote is allowed.

Thousand of votes have been cast during the contest. Every indication is that when the ballots are counted a close contest will be found between a large number of teachers, according to officials in touch with the progress of the quest.

SUSPECT HELD IN CAB HOLDUP

Fifteen minutes after a taxicab driver had been held up and robbed by a passenger, Oakland police early today arrested a suspect who was identified as the robber, they reported.

Jerome Schultz, the driver, of 3538 Frazier street, told police that he was robbed of $10 by an armed man at Darragh and Allequippa streets. The stranger had engaged his cab in Forbes street, Schultz said.

Furnished with a description of the thug, police arrested Joseph McCarthy, 32, of 4418 Sylvan avenue, at Forbes and Brady streets, they reported. In his possession police said they found a revolver McCarthy was identified by Schultz as the robber, according to police.

McCarthy was said to have been released from the workhouse, December 15, after serving a six-month sentence there for a similar offense.

MAWSON PARTY CROSSES CIRCLE

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON.

Commander of the British, Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition.

(Radio via London.)

S. S. DISCOVERY, Dec. 20. (delayed).—The Discovery carried its party of explorers across the Antarctic Circle today, further toward the South Pole.

We have been pushing to the southwest, and have traversed an immense area, all of it pack ice. As we touched the Circle, our longitude was 73.5 East. The ice is heavy, and we are by now well aware that this is a bad season for ice.

Our soundings are becoming markedly shallower, suggesting that land is not distant. There is a notable absence of seals and penguins, however, but in accordance with the soundings, there is a distinct diminution in Plankton life (animal life of the ocean regions far from land) compared with our earlier stations.

Sergt. Douglas is busy unpacking and assembling our airplane, which henceforth will be available for scouting operations.

Man Loses Coat While Playing Santa

DOVER, O., Dec. 24.—William Alleshouse's overcoat disappeared while he was playing Santa Claus for the Salvation Army. Police issued the coat by mistake to the poor, unaware it was Alleshouse's garment.

Burleigh Grimes Sued As Wife Deserter

A suit charging desertion and non-support has been filed against Burleigh Grimes, star pitcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The suit was filed by Mrs. Florence Grimes, yesterday in County Court. The wife charges that she was deserted here last November 9.

Mrs. Grimes said her home was in Minerva, O., and that her husband's native town was Owen, Wis. They were married August 9, 1913. A hearing on the petition was set for January 20, by Judge Richard A. Kennedy.

JEWS PLANNING LIGHT FEAST

Beginning Thursday and continuing eight days, Pittsburgh Jews will join with Jews throughout the world in celebration of Hanukkah, "The Feast of Lights," holy fete of the Jewish calendar. The event symbolizes the triumph of the Jewish spirit over the forces of tyranny and oppression and the victory of Judah, the Maccabee, over the Syrian hosts in 156 B. C.

Special religious services will be held in all temples Saturday and Sunday. Candles will be lighted Thursday night, the number being increased by one each succeeding night.

Although some Jewish authorities claim Hanukkah's origin dates back beyond the death of Alexander the Great, in 323 B. C., others believe the later date to be the official beginning.

COUNCIL OK'S TAX BOOST

Council today affirmed an ordinance increasing the property tax levy to 26 mills on land and 13 mills on buildings and increasing the metered water rates 2 cents on each of four classifications.

The measure will come up next Monday for final passage.

The current property tax is 25 mills on land and 12½ mills on buildings. Existing water rates are: 18 cents for the first 250,000 gallons, 16 cents for the second, 14 cents for the third and 12 cents for the fourth 250,000 gallons.

Chairman Robert Garland, of the Finance Committee, adjourned a budget session yesterday when a quorum failed to appear. Garland, John S. Herron and Harry A. Little were the only members present.

"There will be no more meetings on the budget until January," Garland declared, leaving Council chamber.

President James F. Malone and P. J. McArdle will retire from Council on January 6. Their places will be filled by Clifford B. Connelley and M. J. Muldowney, who were elected last month, and will increase Mayor Kline's majority in the city's legislative body to seven.

The Mayor's majority in the present body is five, but has been ineffective recently owing to the absence of W. Y. English, who is confined to his home by illness.

That would leave the alignment deadlocked at four if a test vote were made on political lines and the Mayor's friends seem inclined to mark time until January when they can clinch any proposal that is made.

JILTED, WOMAN TAKES POISON

Mrs. Catherine Wenrich, 34, a roomer at 1322 Fifth avenue, was reported in a critical condition in Mercy Hospital today, suffering from the effects of poison swallowed in her room last night police said.

Before swallowing the poison, Detectives Frank Dodson and Robert Burke said, the woman left this note:

"Please, Jack, come at once. I love you and don't have anything to live for. You will never run away from me any more. I love you.

"CATHERINE"

According to detectives, the woman referred to a man with whom she had kept company for some time, and who left her several days ago.

THE ARSONIST

—a Discouraged Criminal

More and more is the arsonist becoming a discouraged criminal. So relentless is the search—so greatly improved are the methods of detecting the evil deeds of this foe to all society—that fires started either for revenge or unlawful gain, are steadily decreasing in number.

Through the Arson Department of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the Stock Fire Insurance companies work day and night to apprehend the arsonist.

The Arson Squad—composed of a large number of specially trained men—operates quietly and effectively with the police and fire departments and with fire marshals, to guard the public against incendiarism.

The pitiable but dangerous pyromaniac, with his abnormal mind, also is being curbed.

Model Arson Laws

Legislators in more than half our states have amended their laws to more effectively check the operations of criminals who endanger the lives of others in their desperate efforts to profit illegally through destruction by fire. Other states are joining the movement.

Lives and property are becoming safer as a result of ceaseless vigilance against this crime of crimes.

Even more gratifying results will follow a keener realization of the menace and cost of incendiary fires. There are many ways in which the public may cooperate in aiding the authorities to punish the guilty.

A copy of "The Crime of Crimes," an interesting booklet on arson and incendiarism, may be had upon request.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT MARKS HOLIDAY FEATURES ON AIR

Santa Claus Takes Charge Of Radio Programs

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

SANTA CLAUS as chief announcer will usher in the biggest holiday radio bill ever offered American fans.

The chorus of 15,000 voices in the International Christmas Carol Sing tonight, the various playlets portraying the significance of the season, chimes and carols from Trinity Church in New York, the Columbia Male Chorus, the Yale Glee Club and the first real attempt to exchange programs with European stations for network consumption mark today and tomorrow as red letter days for the radio listener.

In perusing the holiday fare we find few celebrities. Really, the only big names are those of Jack Oakie, Polly Walker and Marguerita Padula, the "Hit the Deck" stars who will entertain with Whiteman over WJAS at 9 this evening. The balance of entertainment is made up of good spots such as choruses, playlets and specialties, each of enough importance to rate a "best bet" anytime.

Exchange of programs with European countries will top programs around noon tomorrow.

We Now Present

How they say "Merry Christmas"—

GLENN RIGGS: Static dashes leaping from a loudspeaker proclaim "Greeting of the season." Underneath, the announcer's name spelled in skywriting. Original.

PAUL J. MILLER: Dog wagging an abbreviated tail. Words: "I am sending you my wishes for Christmas on a shortened wavelength."

VIRGINIA HARMON: Exquisite painted snow scene. Inside, "A Merry Christmas" and in the upper right corner a profile line drawing done by Quin Hall. Quite attractive.

JIM HUGHES: He wants us to have "An Old-Fashioned Merry Christmas" and his personal card is an old-fashioned winter scene.

ALLAN MACHESNEY: It's a peach of a card and it's signed "Mr. and Mrs. A. Machesney and Baby Don." Don, you know, will have his first Christmas tomorrow.

COUSIN LORA: An artist has just painted "The Season's Best Wishes" and is standing back to admire his handiwork. Clever.

VIRGINIA KENDRICK: Hansel and Gretel out skating. Card signed "Titian" and we know who that is because we started it. Beautiful.

ART STRINGER: A full newspaper page folded four times revealed this message when unfolded: "When bigger Christmas greetings are sent, Art Stringer will send 'em." Novel.

OTHERS: Lots of them, for which we are thankful. Tomorrow we want you to have

In the first sketch heavenly music, dim chanting and the words of wise men will create an illusion of a home in Bethlehem that was lighted only by a portentous star. There will be echoes of music that will be heard in thousands of churches earlier that day. There will be a joyous, triumphant theme.

The second episode will bring a vision of a modern home at Christmas. Yet with the modernity there will be a touch of the Christmas Dickens loved to describe, both in the music and the drama. And, strangly enough, the climactic action hinges upon reminders of a less modern school of housekeeping.

The Westinghouse Salute will be broadcast over the NBC network at 7:30 o'clock with five Westinghouse radio stations broadcasting the program.

TREES ATTRACT ATTENTION

Christmas trees bespeak the Yuletide spirit for many business houses with elaborate decorations and extensive displays. Special programs feature many scenes.

Prominent among downtown displays is the 40-foot tree in the main banking room of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh. Approximately 13,000 ornaments adorn the tree while an industrial village imaginative of Pittsburgh life has mills, oil wells and many working figures.

Commuters are daily greeted by huge trees in front of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad and Pennsylvania Railroad stations. Strangers feel the holiday welcome extended in hotel lobbies. A 25-foot tree in the William Penn Hotel main lobby and one gaily decorated in the Fort Pitt Hotel lobby are among the prominent displays.

A Christmas party, with distribution of gifts to children of guests, was a Fairfax Hotel feature around a tree display last night. Green B. Gibson, manager, arranged the program with Attorney Dixon G. Shrum playing the role of Santa Claus.

Christmas Theater Bills as Reviewers Analyze Them

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

INASMUCH as nobody reads an ordinary column on the day before Christmas, we should like to offer a little poem we have written expressly for the occasion. It is called "A Visit From St. Nicholas."

* * *

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all thro' the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there.
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads,
And mamma in her 'kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.

Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow
Gave a lustre of midday to objects below;
When what to my wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver so lively and quick
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles, his coursers they came
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name.

* * *

On Comet, on Cupid! on Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall;
Now dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew
With the sleigh full of toys—and St. Nicholas, too.
And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.

As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in furs from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot.
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack:
His eyes how they twinkled! his dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow.

* * *

The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump—a right jolly old elf—
And I laughed when I saw him in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.

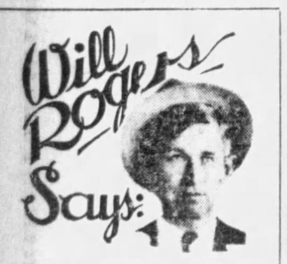
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work
And filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk.
And laying his finger aside of his nose
And giving a nod up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew, like the down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night!"

CLEMENT CLARKE MOORE.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 24. DOOR Democrats. I love 'em, I. I guess it's because some are so dumb, now they are dying to scare up an issue by trying to discredit Mr. Hoover, because some lobbyist wrote a letter saying that he knew President Hoover's secretary, and that the secretary was very partial to Cuban sugar in his coffee in the morning, and that in view of this dastardly plot, Mr. Hoover should really be impeached.

Then they wonder why they don't get anywhere.

Admiral Byrd has flown over both Poles, but he has yet to experience real discomfort. Wait till he attends a Washington dinner in full regalia, with evening cape on his shoulders but [illegible].

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

The Rev. Ethel Barrymore Preaches a Moving Sermon At the Close of a Fine Play

By GEORGE SEIBEL

THE finest sermon preached in this city of Pittsburgh during the entire year was delivered last night at the Alvin Theater by the Reverend Ethel Barrymore. It came at the close of the drama Martinez Sierra has written around the life of a nun—"The Kingdom of God"—and it was delivered with the apostolic fervor one imagines must have thrilled through the words of a Savonarola or a Peter the Hermit.

George Seibel

Every clergyman in this wicked and sinful town ought to go to the Alvin Theater this week and learn how to preach. For the Rev. Ethel Barrymore has the eloquence of Isaiah, the directness of Nathan, and the consecration of Paul.

It is a curious play, this triptych showing us three days in the life of a Spanish nun, Mercie a series of episodes, loosely strung together, without plot or even a thread of a story. In the first act Sister Gracia is 19—and her family come to persuade her to leave the religious life. In the second act she is 29—and the doctor of the maternity home offers his honorable love to her if she will leave the sisterhood. In the last act she is 70—and all the wisdom of her long life seems to have been concentrated in the authority of her holiness.

Yet She Is Human

Still it is no conventional picture of saintliness that Sierra has painted and the Barrymore interprets for us amid the color and setting of Watson Barratt. It would be easy for the expert in ethics to prove this saint a very human sinner.

In the first act she asks her father to save her the bands from his Havana cigars, which she is planning to put on cheap cigars she will give the poor old Cuban exile in the old folks' home. Here we have deception planned in cold blood.

So in the last act she threatens the quarreling inmates of the orphanage that they will be put in the cellar, where the rats will eat them, or that their wicked tongues will be cut out. Here we have tyranny added to deception.

And thus is revealed the psychological subtlety of this Spaniard—who knows that a saint must know human frailty in order to achieve true sanctity.

The play asks one insistent question through the mouth of one of its minor characters: "Who is to blame for so much misery?"

It does not attempt to answer the question.

But does prescribe the cure, through that impressive sermon delivered at the close to the rebellious children of the orphanage.

Acting True To Life

These pictures of human frailty and suffering, vanity and folly, are interpreted by a finely balanced company of players. Here is acting true to life. For instance there may be pointed out the marvelous restraint of Louis Calhern as the physician—there isn't a note of passion in his love-making, but the fervent pity of a noble nature, almost a spiritual passion like that of St. Francis and Santa Clara. Calhern does a piece of acting second only to Miss Barrymore's.

There is the old Cuban exile of Marcel Dill, pathetic in his simplicity. There is the ecstatic visionary of Mary Loane, with something of Christina Rossetti in her hopeless life. There is the firm fleshly humanity of Ernestine Gaines, who sees life through realistic eyes as "a long lane with many inns, and if you don't get cheated in the first you get cheated in the last."

These are only three out of a score of players who all do notable and noble work, portraying real characters with the restraint of great art. It may be—it must be—the aura emanating from the Barrymore that gives the whole picture this atmosphere of austere truth.

COLMAN AND HARDING ARE DRAMATIC ON ALDINE SCREEN

Notorious Devil's Island and its French penal colony furnish the scene for a tense convict drama with Ronald Colman and a strong cast which is shown on screen in Loew's Aldine. The picture, under the title of "Condemned," an adaptation of Mrs. Blair Niles' book "Condemned to Devil's Island," in dramatic intensity outdoes both historic narrative and fiction in the literature of this world famous prison off the coast of South America.

The action offers exceptional opportunities for marvelous photography and every advantage of the camera has been utilized in giving the most spectacular effects in this melodramatic theme.

Acting Is Good

The artistic work of the cast including besides the star such stage players of sterling worth as Dudley Digges, Ann Harding and Lou Wolheim, gives something of an exalted atmosphere to what otherwise would be mediocre melodrama. The staging of the story and its camera achievements lift this Goldwyn picture to heights above the usual on the screen. The scenes in the storm-driven convict ship furnish many thrills.

"Condemned" is described as "glamorous love story." Sordid surroundings make the "glamor." It has to do with the love of the mistreated wife of the warden of Devil's Island for a confessed thief among the convicts. The warden orders his wife to return to her native France and she assists the evict admirer to escape.

Promises To Wait

He is recaptured, however, and is condemned for a longer term while the woman with a passionate farewell kiss promises to wait. Colman impersonates the convict with intelligence and gives the character the attraction of an admirable vagabond. Ann Harding, remembered in Pittsburgh for her work in stock here, is lovable in the part of the wife. Digges and Wolheim, playing, respectively, the warden and a hard-boiled convict, make the best of those roles and provide a touch of comedy to this otherwise emphatic melodrama.

A good bill is furnished on the Aldine screen in the Fox movietone news, a musical revue done in fascinating color and a side-splitting cartoon comedy.

ROMANCE RUNS RIOT IN JOAN CRAWFORD'S PENN PICTURE

Believe it or not, Joan Crawford stages a prize fight and shoots her boy friend in her latest talking picture, entitled "Untamed," and showing the evolution of a jungle girl from calico to chiffon. Grimm's fairy tales and the romances of The Duchess are not in it with the latter-day talkies. The heroines all acquire millions as easily as they sing theme songs by moonlight without banjo lessons. And the heroes turn down millions because it is just as easy to shoot crap when you want to buy Joan a bracelet—and corral $3,000 in that simple fashion.

Love at First Sight

After Joan has been rescued from the jungle by her father's friends, her father bein murdered, incidentally, she bumps into Robert Montgomery, whose name is Andrew in this film drama. There is no escape for Andrew from that moment. Joan hangs around his cabin on the ship, she gets rid of her rivals by "socking them on the nose," and she has grand emotions every time there has been a little lull.

Joan has considerable acting ability, revealed by this picture in the Penn, and she ought to have a scenario that bears some resemblance to real life—like "Little Red Riding Hood" or "Cinderella."

Anna Chang Pleases

The happiest feature of the stage show is Anna Chang, the Chinese nightingale, or whatever sort of bird it is that warbles in China. Anna sings well and has personality.

The Black Dots are amusing dancers, and there is a marionette theater that affords a pleasing novelty, with an ingenious costume effect in the opening number of the Gamby Hale Girls.

The Christmas season inspires Elias Breeskin and his orchestra to present a cheerful medley ranging from "Silent Night" to "Adeste Fidelis," and Dick Leibert rises to a Herbert song on his organ.

German Dancers Here Next Monday

Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi, German dancers, come to Carnegie Music Hall next Monday evening, December 30. Kreutzberg and Georgi differ from all other dancers, and the conventional routine and steps play a decidedly small part in the work of these two modernists, who come to Pittsburgh under the direction of May Beegle.

Roland Hayes, a singer, will be heard in Pittsburgh Tuesday evening, January 7, at Carnegie Music Hall.

Earl Carroll "Vanities" Brings Fields, Fun and Pretty Girls to Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

THE first of the more famous revues to visit Pittsburgh this season, Earl Carroll's "Vanities"—or to give the production its official title, W. C. Fields in Earl Carroll "Vanities"—arrived in the Nixon last night. It brought the usual Earl Carroll opulence of feminine beauty, and material gorgeousness, together with novel methods of presenting both.

Also it brought the customary retinue of artists in a variety of endeavor, comedians, dancers and songsters, whose specialties were intermixed with the numerous elaborate scenes that were filled with girls—really beautiful girls—assembled in eye-filling groups in settings of extreme brilliance. Heading this brigade of comeliness and shapeliness was Dorothy Britton, "Miss Univrese," to give her the title awarded at the International Pageant of Beauty in Galveston, Tex.

Mild to Hilarious

Fields' comedy was evident in numerous sketches and skits scattered through the 40 scenes that made up the two acts. Some were hilariously funny and some only mildly humorous, but on the whole it may be said this popular clown struck an average in the generation of chuckles that was highly satisfactory.

An especially clever conceit was his appearance in several parts in one scene, one after another, as various railroad flunkies attempting to eject an objectionable passenger, departing at each failure to bring a higher official. By use of life-like masks it was made to appear there were about a half dozen Fieldses on the stage at the same time. His search for a black necktie in a steamship stateroom while he was on his bridal trip was a scream.

Some Funny Dancers

Ben Blue, second comedian, also had his moments, but it cannot be said they were great ones. Al John and Joe Bennett, funny dancers, assisted in making the laughter in the merry interludes in which they appeared. Others prominent included Dorothy Lull, dancer, whose slow motion movement in contortionistic poses brought forth liberal applause. The three Novellos scored in adagio dances. Vocalizing was attended to passably by Pat Henry, Joey Ray, Paul Russell and Grace Wells.

VARIETY OF DRAMA IN NEW YEAR BILLS

"Children of Darkness," a new play, will be the attraction in the Nixon next week. Seats for week go on sale in the box office Thursday morning. Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis are being starred in this tragi-comedy, as it is called by Edwin Justus Mayer, the author. In their support will be Charles Dalton, Walter Kingsford, Eugene Powers and J. Kerbey Hawkes.

Ethel Barrymore, who is appearing in "The Kingdom of God," in the Shubert Alvin Theater this week, will be seen in a play of an entirely different nature when she acts Lili Hatvgany's "The Love Duel," adapted by Zoe Akins, here next week. Seats are now on sale.

There will be a Christmas matinee of "The Barker" in the Pitt tomorrow afternoon, on Thursday and another on Saturday. Next week the company will offer a farce, "Getting Gertie's Garter."

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 24. THE I. C. C., which doesn't stand for "I Claim Credit," but represents the Interstate Commerce Commission, proposes a plan for 21 systems of railroads throughout the United States and Canada. It sounds intricate, but it's really very simple—I'll explain:

Under the new system the B. & O. becomes part of the Santa Fe and Canadian Pacific. The Erie merges with the Burlington and the Manchurian-Siberian line, which brings the Wabash closer to the Chesapeake & Ohio, which is as it should be. Then again, the Illinois Central and Chicago Northwestern becomes a part of the Boston & Maine, except during stormy weather, when it is then known as the Southern Pacific.

In merging they will retain the best features of each road. For example, the tracks of the Pennsylvania and the cars of the Santa Fe, the porters of the New York Central and the baked potatoes of the Great Northern, etc.

If the consolidation goes through, you might be in a dining car going to Baltimore, you order food, but they will not serve it until you have reached Seattle unless you order chicken a la Maryland. In that case, you would have to get off at Camden and change to the Seaboard Air Line. Under this system, you would pay less railroad fare, but get more scenery. Is it clear?

ROYALTY AT VATICAN NEWSREEL FEATURE

Extremely impressive motion pictures of the visit of the King and Queen of Italy to Pope Pius at the Vatican are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. King Victor Emanuel and Queen Elena are seen leaving the Quirinal and riding through cheering crowds that line the streets of Rome on their way to Vatican City. As they arrive at the boundary line that separates the latter from Rome, they are met by the stately robed dignitaries of the church.

The spirit of Christmas is abundantly shown in Hearst Metrotone News also. One of the most interesting of the Christmas subjects is a visit made by New York youngsters to Knickerbocker Hospital where some remarkably appealing pictures of children with their toys were made.

Storm Havoc

Among other interesting subjects in Hearst Metrotone News are the opening of the racing season at Havana; the destruction wroght by the storm on land and sea in Europe and in the Far Pacific; the launching of the biggest submarine in the world, the U-5; the opening of the Senate war over the world court; a thrilling horse race in Australia for a purse of $50,000, and a hilarious picture made behind the scenes of a Broadway musical show at rehearsal time.

Fox Movietone News, in addition to the pictures of the visit of the Italian sovereigns to the Pope, contains a thrilling subject on the accident to Charles Ferguson, Jr., of San Francisco, who was hurled to his death from a glider while attempting to span the Golden Gate.

Students of Harvard To Present Concert

Fifty-one Harvard students are to give a special concert this week Thursday evening in Carnegie Music Hall. A program of great variety has been prepared, including not only mandolin, banjo and vocal units of the club, the Gold Coast Orchestra and a monologue and legerdemain act.

"THE BARKER" BARKS CARNIVAL DRAMA IN PITT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Barker," opened last night as the Christmas week presentation on the Pitt stage. It is a drama of carnival life, with its love moments ardent and its profanity liberal. And it serves the George Sharp Players as a noisy means of saying "Merry Christmas."

All of them are there, those queer carnival folks—the tattoo artist, the snake charmer, the Hula dancer, the palmist, the show owner and, of course, the barker himself. "Hick" customers also are displayed for atmosphere.

The Hula dancer gets blonde treatment from Mabel Kroman, who at times appears in one of those straw affairs that go for clothing in the South Sea Islands. And this dancer has a lot to do with the plot. "Thown over" by Nifty Miller, the barker, she plans to get even by inducing Lou, the snake charmer, to vamp his son. This son, fresh from the farm, is his father's pride and joy, and its a great shock to father when he "falls" for Lou.

And its a great shock for Lou, too, for she finds herself falling in love with the country lad—and she ends up by marrying him. Hugh Banks, as Barker Miller's innocent son, certainly displays a lot of knowledge "clinches" for a country boy.

As for snake-charmer Lou, she is a pretty attractive lady—made so by the personality of M. Sharp's new leading woman, Edith King. She is called upon to register numerous moods—and she does. One moment she's angry and shouting. The next she is happy and crying. But whether just the vamp or, as later, a woman really in love, she puts emotional quality into her.

Harland Tucker, as the barker, makes a lot of noise and goes into a lot of dramatics. And a number of other players bob in and out of the action. These include Gus Forbes, who measures up as usual as Col. Gowdy, the show owner; Hugh Harper, who in reality, is an old-timer of stage and backstage activity; Norman Porter, Billy Link, Robert Fiske and Alice Ann Baker.

The carnival atmosphere has been caught pretty well by the scenic settings and by the acting of the principal players.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Are the morals of the public bettered by censorship of literature, stage productions and movies?

JAMES J. M'GEEVER, filing clerk, Homestead: "Yes and no. Censorship may protect the morals of children but the morals of adults are of their own making. Anyone over 21 should have brain enough to decide what is and is not good for him to see or read. Of course, a child is unable to decide the question for himself.

James McGeever

CAESAR KOSINSKI, chief-clerk, East End: "When I think of censorship I think of Boston and I don't like either. Censorship does not better morals. If an individual is desirous of reading a certain book or seeing a certain play let him do it, regardless of its merit or content. What is moral to one may be considered immoral by another. Board of censors should be permitted to dictate to the public."

Caesar Kosinski

ANNETTE CONNELL, clerk, East End: "The human race's eternal quest for that which smacks of the immoral is curbed by censorship. We may be compared to so many unclean beasts fighting for a morsel of scandal. To what depths would our minds sink if the gates of censorship were opened? The censor protects us from things that should have no place in literature, movies or stage productions."

Annette Connell

WILLIAM H. M'QUAID, office manager, South Hills: "Does censorship better public morals? That's a laugh! Why, the censors themselves don't know what's moral or immoral. Take the movie 'The Cock-Eyed World' for instance. I hear that the Board of Censors of Pennsylvania cut some dialogue from that show. What they allowed to ride through was a crime. Maybe the poor censors are not up on the latest slang expressions. I'll take mine uncensored."

William McQuaid

RHODA TURETS, secretary: "They surely are. People are prone to place themselves in the position of the one that's doing the heroic on the screne or the main character of a novel. If that hero of the screen or the main character of the novel is allowed to do and say things that are not moral the general public may think that it, too, may so conduct itself. Censorship keeps our lower nature from feeding on muck."

Rhoda Turets

MARGARET SHAW, stenographer, East End: In my opinion censorship is of great benefit. If producers of shows and writers of books were allowed to have full sway the decent would be sacrificed. I know of a certain woman writer who makes heroines out of her scarlet ladies. Her novels like those of other would-be writers are now kept within bounds. Without censorship they would have no limits.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Sees Holiday Plays

IT'S the day before Christmas, and all through the city every creature is stirring, and no wonder, with more exciting things going on than ever the most splendid three-ring circus had to offer.

There's a ball every night for the debutante set, a party every day for the school set, and the theaters for everyone.

Last night, in spite of last-minute preparations for Christmas, the Nixon and Alvin were filled with responsive holiday audiences.

At the Nixon the colorful gowns of the members of the social world were eclipsed only by the fairy-tale splendor of the costumes always associated with the brilliant spectacle of Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

At the Alvin a number of folks went to see the artist, Ethel Barrymore, in "The Kingdom of God."

As I was leaving the Nixon I saw Mrs. Joseph Horne Holmes, mother of the debutante, Mary Blair Holmes, may I add, waiting for her car. She wore a black crepe dress and a furred black broadtail coat.

And I also caught a glimpse of Mrs. Robert Lucien Patton, wearing a lemon-yellow satin gown, made very long with a brief train, and lustrous creamy-yellow wrap.

One of the most striking members of the younger married is tall, slender, auburn-haired Mrs. Faber Downey, Jr., whom I saw smoking during the intermission in the lobby. Her gown was of black crepe in the princess mode, made very long with a train. And she was wrapped in a sable coat.

Among other Sewickley society folks there were the Cyrus R. Millers. And Mrs. Miller looked most distinguished in a long, clinging gown of rose fishnet and a smart coat of white lapin. Just as I was leaving I caught sight, I believe, of Mrs. Albert Horne Burchfield in a black crepe gown and sable coat.

The junior Alan Stephenson Humphreys were smoking with friends in the lobby during the intermission. And Mrs. Humphreys wore a gown of flame-colored chiffon.

And I caught a glimpse of attractive Mrs. Thomas G. McCutcheon, Jr., in black chiffon and a black broadtail coat.

And the Reginald G. Quailes were at the "Vanities" too, with petite Mrs. Quaile wearing white taffeta and a wrap of silver metallic cloth.

A brown lace gown was worn by Mrs. Charles Flaccus, whom I saw as she was leaving the theater.

Others I noted in the lobby were the Gordon Kings, with Mrs. King wearing brown lace and a black seal coat, and Mrs. Blair Childs in a white lapin coat and a very long black velvet gown.

And lovely Elinor Munroe I saw smoking in the lobby. And she wore a gown of orange chiffon in the princess mode, with a long, full skirt.

I HAPPEN to know that during the latter part of the week members of the younger school set will be seen at the Alvin. And last night, leaving after the play, I saw Juliette Frauenheim, wrapped in a blue velvet cloak, chatting with Mrs. H. C. Star, who wore a black velvet wrap furred in white. And with them were Edna Diebold, also in blue, and Anne McDonough, wearing a dark heavily furred coat. Miss Frauenheim gave a theater party, I might add.

AND last night one of the most brilliant affairs of the season took place, when Marguerite Singer Milligan, or Peggy, as everyone calls her, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, made her bow to society in the Pittsburgh Club. The distinctive decorations were modernistic in an interesting combination of blue and silver.

The doorways were hidden by sets of Hollywood blue suedine edged with nickeloid and polished metal. In the ballroom the stage was framed with blue and silver, with glittering crystal trees hung with silver fringe. The backdrop was of silver cloth scintillating under blue lights, and silver and blue foliage shaded the lights.

The bud, received with her mother and father in the rear of the ballroom beneath a painting of William Pitt, Peggy wore a very distinctive gown of white tulle, with the long, full skirt embroidered in silver, and her flowers were white orchids. Her mother was in silver lame, made very long, and she wore mauve orchids.

The supper tables were centered with blue bowls of pink roses and the blue crystal candelabra held coral candles. In the squash courts were buffet tables with silver cloths, edged with blue foliage with blue baskets filled with pink roses gracing the small tables, and silver baskets of hothouse grapes.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. E. S. Proctor, of New York, sister of the host, and Miss Ethel Crew, of Washington, both guests in the Milligan home.

Before the ball the John Crosgan Dilworths, of Bennington avenue, were hosts at a dinner dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club given in honor of Virginia Wright, Emily Frew and Elizabeth Curry, buds of this season. There were about a hundred guests. The tables were lovely with silver vases of Talisman roses in yellow and bronze and Pernet roses. Between each vase a miniature pool was simulated by mirrors circled with southern smilax and marguerites. Purple hothouse grapes added another touch of color.

YESTERDAY afternoon the University Club was the scene of a tea-dance given by the Edwin Stanton Fickes, of Woodland road, in honor of their daughter, Harriet, and Nancy Allderdice. The two debs received with the Fickeses in the ballroom, which was lovely in Christmas colors of red, silver and green. And the debs' gift bouquets were displayed beautifully.

Harriet wore a gown of bay green crepe, fashioned in princess mode, made very long, and Nancy was distinguished in black and white crepe. Mrs. Fickes was gowned simply in black velvet. And receiving with them I noticed Eleanor and Charlotte Goodwill, of Jamestown, N. Y.

ANOTHER bud to make her bow this season was Mary Wharton Knox, daughter of the Roger Knoxes, of Wightman street. She was presented in the Knox home yesterday afternoon at a buffet luncheon given by her mother. And of course all the other debs were guests. I also happen to know that on January 4 Mary will be an honor guest at a dinner to be given by the Stewart John-Johnstons, of South Highland avenue, in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. EDGAR RANDAL CATE announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothea Cate, to Andrew Meserve Rankin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Poland Rankin, of Boston. Miss Cate is a graduate of Thurston, and a senior at Vassar. and Mr. Rankin is a graduate of Dartmouth.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Haviland Coxe, of Uniontown, Pa., formerly of Pittsburgh, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Josephine Coxe, of Pittsburgh, to Frederick Hoyt Bassette, of Springfield, Mass.

Miss Coxe is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, class of 1928, and Mr. Bassette, of Williams College, class of 1926. He is a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity. The wedding will be an event of June.

MRS. M. J. SHORTLEY, president of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Trinity College Alumnae, announces that these men will form the floor committee for the dinner-dance to be given in the Hotel Schenley Thursday: Paul Eichenlaub, Herbert Mansmann, Erl Tromble, Ralph W. Friday and M. J. Shortley.

City Club's Decoration Unusual

THE Woman's City Club has one of the most unusual Christmas trees in town this year, the first in the new club quarters. To begin with, it is an especially shapely tree and has been placed at a most strategic position, from which it can be seen immediately one enters the hallway. Silver rain and dozens of silver balloons that move lazily about are its only decoration, but it is lighted from three different angles with colored flood lights and the effect is most artistic. The entire club is decorated—wreaths at the windows and holly and smilax over the window draperies and mantels, with many red candles adding to the picture. Every table in the tea room has its own little snow-covered fir tree.

Miss Marion Jobson, Miss Florence Leitch and Miss Nell McKenry are responsible for the club's gala dress.

THE Mothers' and Teachers' Club of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church will hold its annual Christmas party for the children of members Friday afternoon in the church. Mrs. John D. Pennington will give music and poetry of fantasy and youth, accompanied at the piano by Miss Gladys Schade. A Christmas tree and gifts will be other features of the affair. * * *

THE College Club will keep open house on Friday, the members having been invited to bring their daughters and friends. As program Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus will sing. Hostesses for the day include Dr. Luba Robin Goldsmith, Mrs. Stephen L. Goodale, Mrs. Robert J. Gibson, Mrs. James G. Geegan, Mrs. Robert G. Gillespie and Mrs. T. C. Gerwig.

THE Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club is making tentative plans for its part in the celebration of Business Women's Thrift Day, a part of National Thrift Week to be celebrated January 17 to 23. The local club will have its celebration the night of the twenty-first, although concentration on special programs will be general throughout the Federation on the seventeenth.

BLACK SATIN FAVORED FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Dec. 24.—If you are at all material minded, sartorially speaking of course, you must have noticed the strong appeal made by black satin as the ideal fabric for afternoon wear. Some of the most bewitching frocks of the season have been developed in this medium, and many a dull afternoon has been enlivened by the knowledge that one is wearing a dress of gleaming, glorious satin. It is a material that needs little in the way of embellishment.

Simplicity is the watchword of the black satin frock, if an overdressed appearance is to be avoided. And so, perfection of cut, meticulous attention to detail and simplicity are the ingredients in the recipe for a lovely and modish black satin frock. If trimming is essential, let it be a fine piece of lace at the neck or wrists. But beware the glittering rhinestone pin, for the brightness of the material is, or should be, sufficiently luminous.

TO illustrate the black satin frock at its best, we can do no better than to show one taken from the new collection offered by Agnes. This model is typical of the several delightful gowns in that medium that are displayed by the famous designer. The glimmering fabric molds the figure in true princess fashion with a quite long skirt which flares below the knees, scalloped at the edge and dipping in back. A set-in yoke of coffee-colored lace trims the close-fitting bodice, and lends beauty to the sleeves.

COLLECTIONS shown to mark the demi-season verified the importance of the tailored dress, that contrives to look delightfully feminine despite its severe cut and silhouette. Such models are to be found in the collection of chez De Flaviis, who is showing some exceptionally smart frocks. The nice little frock shown here is of a light weight gray tweed, enlivened with a collar and cuff jabots of gay printed crepe in gray and bright yellow. We show the back of this frock.

N. BOROUGHS TO SING CAROLS

Carol singing and community celebrations will herald the approach of Christmas in the North Boroughs tonight, Christmas Eve.

For the third successive year citizens of Emsworth will join in singing carols around a Christmas tree on the grounds of the borough hall. The program opens at 7:30 o'clock. Church choirs, directed by Frank McMahon, will be augmented by children of the public and parochial schools. John Broadfield, cornetist, will assist.

Girl Scouts will sing around the community Christmas tree in front of the borough building in Ben Avon and later will sing in grounds in front of homes.

Young people of various churches of Avalon and Bellevue plan to sing in the streets tonight, after the old English custom.

Avalon's community tree in front of the borough school has been lighted with 250 bulbs. Bellevue's principal thoroughfare, Lincoln avenue, is aglow with electrically lighted wreaths and outdoor Christmas trees.

NEWSIES LAUD ALDINE PARTY

The second and last of two theater parties given to Sun-Telegraph newsies at the Aldine Theater filled the balcony of the house this morning.

Almost a thousand enthusiastic newsboys cheered and greeted Ann Harding and Ronald Coleman through the tense scenes of "Condemned," laughed uproariously at Krazy Kat, and saw a short, snappy musical comedy flicker across the screen.

Not least of the thrills was Televox, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company robot. Televox turned on a light. Televox switched a fan into operation. Televox lit a Sun-Telegraph sign. Televox, newsies say, is a great fellow—he always does what he's told to do, never makes a mistake, and will not argue.

Almost 2,000 newsboys saw "Condemned" yesterday and today. The party was the Sun-Telegraph's Christmas present to the boys who spend their spare time during the year, helping Pittsburghers to get their Sun-Telegraphs.

Lutheran Mission Plays Santa to 350

The Lutheran Inner Mission Society of Pittsburgh is carrying out the largest program of Christmas charity in its history, officials of the organization said today.

The family welfare department is caring for 150 families, it was said, and the children of these families, 350 in all, will receive their Christmas gifts through the department.

Mrs. A. L. Stroud, supervisor, is being assisted by Miss Margaret Callin, Miss Dora Cook and Mrs. James Ford. Christmas deliveries, started several days ago, are expected to be completed late today.

The institutional department, which visits hospitals, prisons and almshouses, is distributing 4,000 half-pound boxes of candy and apples in the almshouses alone. A group of 15 volunteers are assisting the Rev. A. W. Stremel, who is in charge of the department.

All of the gifts now being distributed were collected from the society's headquarters in the Pittsburgh Life Building, where the sorting and wrapping is done by a large staff of volunteer workers.

Pat Sends Out Distress Message When Men Are Absent

CHAPTER XLI.

THE two men had a confederate. All was O. K. with this confederate. They were to deliver the child to him. He wanted the kid; they could have the coin. It was "all cold in their hands."

Monday morning Pat stepped from the cabin with the memory of the night's revelations turning her mind and her heart into a waste.

Sunlight swept over the plateau in great sparkling waves. It billowed about one like a shining, exhilarant sea.

From the stupendous architecture in the canyon walls Pat had marked one mighty edifice that marched in the loveliest purple columns, story upon story, to a tower of bewitching pink. Each day she told Billy tales about these fantastic castles.

Now she stood with the little boy holding fast to her hand, feeling not sunlight but a bleakness and hurricane. Last Monday morning just about this time she'd driven away with Dickie. How poetic Laura had looked, waving her hand.

"Is the tall fairy looking at us? Pat—you're MEAN! You don't listen at all!"

"Yes, I listen," Pat answered, staring into the little boy's dark eyes. His hands rested so trusting in hers. Very slender and soft. She could crush it up like petals.

Today they were going to take this child of Barbara Bryce's—this mere boy—and deliver him to some mysterious third party. Even a cold, unscrupulous fellow like Slim called it murder.

There was nothing Pat could do. Ace was gone now to make sure of the trail he'd found. In five or six hours he'd return. Wait through the stark, panic-filled day. . . . helpless, grotesquely trapped.

Wait till they come and snatched the child from her arms; till they sent her hurtling from the cliff.

Wild with resistance, Pat flung from the incredible prospect. Jump—hide—dash herself to death—anything but meek acceptance.

Her mind flew outward madly. Impossible that this could be the end.

She walked up to the ledge where she was free to wander. They called this section of the plateau Pat's "boudoir." It was about 300 yards from the plane and somewhat shut off by jutting, irregular rock piles. There were tall monuments resting precariously on slender sandstone bases; there were cones and turrets. Heads of giant tigers and of fantastic birds were modeled magnificently in the cliffs.

And here, reached by three crude stone steps, was a great overhanging rock. It shot out boldly, a full 15 feet from the canyon wall. The wall caved back obliquely.

"I could jump from here," Pat thought, growing faint with the mere image of it. "Run out there and leap before they could come upon me—before they could even see me. Get a parachute and leap!"

She closed her eyes and went through the dizzying performance. How often she had strapped the parachute to her; how often she had listened to Guy's instructions. Jump! Pull the rip-cord—no sensation of falling.

And Lindy describes it so casually in that quiet book of his:

"Then I stepped out on the cowling; then I jumped."

Ah, yes—even from a plane; even into clear air, it took nerve—tremendous nerve. And with a child? Holding a child in her arms—?

He would struggle: he would be insanely frightened; would scream out and reveal it all before she'd have a chance to get into the flying suit and the parachute adjusted.

Pat grappled with this. Presently she sank down and took the little boy in her lap:

"Listen, Billy, I've got a new game. This afternoon we'll play it—a new kind of hide and seek. I make a sling for you and strap you to me—the way a kangaroo carries her babies . . . ever see them in the park? And you don't say one word. You have to be quiet as a mouse. Then I tie a handkerchief over your eyes. I hold you tight in my arms and run. Give a great big run and jump. You don't move. You stay as still as still. Then I say: 'Where are we?' And you guess."

"Let's play it now. Right now! I AM a little mouse—werry, werry quiet."

All sparkling with eagerness.

"Right now, Pat. Why do we always have to wait?"

"First I have to put on a suit like an aviator's. Then I put straps around you. But you mustn't say a word. Don't tell them a single thing. When we come this afternoon no one must know. You just stand so quiet. Then I put the handkerchief over your eyes. Then I hold you tight. You mustn't even laugh—not till I say: 'Guess where we are?'"

The little boy put his hand up to Pat's face and asked seriously:

"Why do you look at me so?"

"How am I looking?"

Widening his eyes making them very big and solemn:

"Like that. And you hold my hands so tight."

"Yes—I have to hold you tight. But it will be fun—wonderful fun. Remember—QUIET—very, very quiet!"

Pat looked down into the dark, terrifying stone labyrinth: "I'll jump out ever so far. I'll have to!"

Flinging her burning glance to the sunny farm off there in the distance—white house, cosy red roof glinting so cheerfully in the morning sun. Could she reach it? Would the joyous hour come when she would knock on the holy door of human habitation again?

If Slim would only wander off! All week Pat had been praying for 10 minutes alone in the plane. With 10 minutes she could have sent out that SOS. Guy had taught her. She had the symbols written down on a sheet of paper in the pocket near the radio. "Guy—SOS—Patricia Dawn." She'd practiced on the stones with the dots and dashes. And she'd figured out "Grand Canyon." She had all the letters she needed for the two words.

But all week one or the other of them had been within sight or earshot. Whenever she went into the cabin, they strolled up and watched.

The parachute—a brand new one bought just two weeks ago—was in the chest under the seat of the cabin. The suit she wore when flying was there, too. Would any way be given her to get these?

About 3 o'clock that afternoon Slim took the canvas water bag and came toward her. He was going for water! To that spring, a mile and a half away. She would have the time!

So excited that she dared not meet his eyes, Pat heard his approach. The next moment her prayerful thanks dropped into a little black pit of alarm.

"Come on, kid—take a walk," the man was saying.

Billy shook his head resolutely: "I don want to."

"Come along—we'll see a rabbit."

"No—you go. Go alone. I don't like rabbits. I'll stay with Pat."

"All right, then!" Slim stooped down, picked the boy up, swung him under his arm and strode off. The child kicked.

They disappeared behind that hump in the table.

Then Pat ran after him. She tore wildly. She called with a valiant attempt at breeziness:

"Tom! Tom!"

He swung about and with his lips drawn back over white, gleaming fangs, waited: "What'll you have girl?"

She was almost fainting.

"Now get back there. Get back there and stay back!"

"He won't do anything to him—they won't hurt him!" she told herself with sick terror. Her tortured eyes followed until they were into the gulley. "He just wants to keep him safe."

Ah—but maybe they were taking him away now—maybe she would never see the child again. . . .

Pat flew to the cabin. She reached for that pocket. The yellow paper was there. Three dots; then three dashes; three dots again. That was the SOS.

She tapped it on the little disk of the sending apparatus. And dripping with apprehension, she made out the rest of the message—"Patricia Dawn, Grand Canyon."

She made a mistake—tapped it all over again.

Seven times Pat sent out that message.

LOVE

It's a Beautiful, a Summoning Word

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

WE say, "LOVE!" It is a beautiful, a summoning word. For it conjures pictures, shapes, visions.

When we say it, and then silence closes around us again like a dove-gray velvet cloak, thoughts begin to simmer and rise, curling about the echo of the tender word.

And the thoughts of each of us, different people, with different temperaments, different desires, different beliefs, different dreams, shape a different meaning around it.

To Gloriette—single—LOVE means just one picture. Man and girl, with ecstatic Cupid posed above, a moon if possible, dance music, his lips close to her ear, kisses, sighs, a sparkling engagement ring that blinds the eyes of the world, gayety, light dreams that skirt the edge of the deep pool of real love, shy of the deeps, the sober meanings, content yet with the sun and the flowers that grow around the edge.

To Gloriette—married—love means the fairy tale of falling into the dark pool of love, RIGHT TO THE BOTTOM! Where, like the step-child who fell in the well, she walks out into another world. Undreamed of. One that can in no way be imagined, imaged, by Gloriette—single!

A world of mixed anguish and delight, anxiety, pain and pleasure. Where the scant emotion she started with is made to stretch itself to circus-tent size. Where one small human woman expends love and anxious thoughts every moment; and every moment, like the picture the Saint gave the old couple in the woods, it is magically replaced with more. To spend again! Where she tries to love one man the same as in their first days together, and a child more than all the world welded together. Where duties and petty details get all mixed up with the soft emotions of her doting and romantic love; and out of the confusion that the two make in her mind and heart she strives to bring order, a perfect home, a little beauty for herself, idle moments for a child's questions, playtime for the man, and all without giving away the effort, the chaos behind the scenes!

Delicate, light-minded cartoons of LOVE that we make always have the pierced and bleeding heart. But it doesn't properly go with the picture of ecstatic, untroubled young love. It goes with the picture of that same love—glorified. Mother-LOVE! Than which there is no more strange and lovely!

LOVE. The dove-colored word! New Thoughts have spread it out over the entire kindly feeling of one part of the world for the other. But the love of man for mankind has nothing to do with this rosy word—LOVE.

It means only two kinds: Romantic LOVE and the sacred love of a woman for a child.

NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

"Let Him Deny Himself," Dr. Copeland's Christmas Message

CHRISTMAS is a day for lofty thoughts. It is a day dedicated to the sweet memory of the Christ Child.

No one can read the story of Jesus without noting the self-sacrifice, the selflessness of the Master. His gospel was an appeal to set aside all thoughts of self. "Whosoever will come after Me, let him deny himself."

DR. COPELAND

This saying of Jesus is recorded in three of the Gospels and to Luke the words seemed so important that he wrote them a second time. Self-denial was the central theme of the Master's teachings.

The Wise Men brought gifts of gold, and frankincense, and myrrh. Because of that we have come to make Christmas, the birthday of the Christ Child, a day for giving to our children.

It is not alone the recipient of a gift who is pleased. The giver is, too, provided it is a gift representing real self-denial, real sacrifice. Even though it cost thousands of dollars, no other gift is quite the same.

To deny self is one of the greatest of the Christian virtues. It requires character to resist the appeals of appetite. The easy way is to indulge the demands of the flesh. The Christian way is to say, "I won't."

Example is everything in attempt at teaching the virtues. It is not alone one Christmas that we should give gifts to our children, and not all important gifts are material ones. To give a good example of right living is the most valuable of all gifts.

What sort of life do you lead? Do you eat everything that appeals to the eye or to the palate? Do you neglect your bath, your exercise, your hours of sleep? Do you do only those things that your indolent self is pleased to have you do?

What an example!

Is that a gift you deliberately impose upon your child?

Shame on you!

Perhaps I am pretty direct in these words. Forgive me. I plead guilty to the same evil practices. Suppose we pledge ourselves and each other today that this Christmas Day shall be the beginning of more worthy gift giving to our children.

Right living, right eating, proper care of the body and the maintenance of a sanitary home, are the foundations of perfect health and long life. Let us include these in our Christmas lists for all time

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dining Etiquet

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am a young woman keeping house for a gentleman. When the meal is over, should I excuse myself when rising and should I leave my serviette folded on my butter plate?

I have quite a few friends, women, very well educated, who, like myself, are not certain regarding certain rules to be observed when lunching, so with your kind permission they would be pleased to see the answer in your valuable paper. L. L.

IF YOU rise from the table when the other members of the household do, you would not excuse yourself, any more than they would. There would be no reason for it. But if you, for any reason, leave the table during the meal, you would excuse yourself, just as any other polite member of the household would do.

There is no time when one leaves one's serviette folded on the butter plate. If the custom of the household is to fold the serviette after a meal—which is the custom of the usual household—then you would do this. Leave your serviette folded neatly on the left of your place.

You sound as if you had in your mind many more questions concerning the etiquet of dining. If you have, do let me talk them over with you. Every detail of dining is important and significant of our manners.

Accepting a Present

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

The man I work for and his wife presented me with a very lovely antelope bag for my birthday. His wife, whom I know only from her visits to our office, came to me with it. I thanked them both, but as the other girl in the office was in the room, I did not open the package. Did I do right? Shall I write her a little note of thanks? If so, how should I word it? E. M.

EVEN if the other girl were in the room, it would have shown a surer social grace if you had opened the package. Not to open the present that anyone hands to us always seems rather awkward, very awkward in fact. Don't you have that same reaction when you hand anyone a present and the person does not open it? Always there is the feeling that there is an uncertainty that we should prefer not to have there.

Yes, write a note of thanks at once. Tell this kind friend how deeply touched you were by her thought of you, and how much you like the handsome bag. Say definite things about the beauty of the bag, about its color perhaps, about the fact that it will form part of an ensemble that you have, or about the loveliness of its leather. In other words, don't be vague in the wording of your appreciation of the bag itself. She chose it, no doubt, with a great deal of care and taste, and she wants to know that you appreciate this thoughtfulness.

Convenient Silver Utensils

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I had a dinner at one of the hotels not long ago and they served a course dinner, a fruit cocktail first, an entree and steak, no salad, and some people in the party ate their fish entree with their salad forks. Was that correct? E. R.

YES. Since no salad was served, probably the salad fork was placed to use with the fish entree. And after all, the salad fork is perfectly convenient to use when we eat fish. So is any kind of small fork. Nowadays not such meticulous discriminations are made between silver utensils. The ones that are considered "convenient" are placed. That is why the small knife and fork, the luncheon knife and fork, or the smaller knife and fork, the "tea" knife and fork, find so many uses.

Horoscopes

Christmas Day, Dec. 25

THE major festival of all the year comes to us under the high spiritual potencies of Sol in trine aspect with Neptune, the orb of the celestial and mystical, with Luna sextile to Sun, and Neptune contributing her meed to the reign of festivity pervading the planet. Even the major malefics, Saturn and Mars, are in friendly aspect, offering gifts both substantial and felicitous.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a forthcoming year of peace, prosperity and progress, with much activity in daily concerns, with the assurance also of substantial return for diligence and fidelity. They may make very desirable connections with large corporations or combines, with secret societies or in diplomatic channels.

Children born on this day should have many unusual talents and proclivities and should reach important place in diplomacy, with large corporations, secret societies or mystical bodies. They should be practical, constructive and have high ideals and aspirations as well.

Thursday, December 26

THE planetary configurations both by lunar and mutual aspects, show a distinct reaction, or letting down, from the previous day's high arcs of festivity and commotion. There may be little of moment to engage the attention although there may be some incentives to wrangle and dispute, unless a firm check be put upon tongue and temper.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of humdrum and routine affairs unless they stir up strife, contention and turmoil by their own tendencies to rash, impulsive and tempestuous behavior. With proper restraint, these incitements to fiery action may be turned into profitable and constructive channels.

A child born on this day may have a tendency to passionate and tumultuous behavior which might be turned to good account in creative and practical lines by self-control and proper direction of these fiery forces. It should be enterprising and aggressive if given early training and discipline.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Phil Veritzen Calmly Offers an Explanation

PHILIP VERITZEN'S poise is shock proof, and his manner was perfect as, ignoring for the moment the entrance of Edith and Dickey, he rose from his chair and picked up the roses scattered from the broken bowl.

"I never can forgive myself, Mrs. Graham," he said, as he laid the roses upon the table. "It is punishment for bringing the bowl over to this table." He turned and included the others in his apology. "But I am quite mad about the glass, and this was an unusual specimen, I thought. I wanted to examine it at closer quarters. Do tell me where you found it. Of course, I shall not rest until I find something as nearly like it as possible."

Even through my lively dismay, my laughter muscles threatened rebellion. If only he had put forward any other explanation of the little scene upon which Dickey and Edith had stumbled! I knew that he had not once glanced at the bowl of roses he had set upon the table with the gallant little speech that "a beautiful woman should always have roses near her."

"Don't be so desolated, Veritzen." Dicky's voice held a distinct sneer, although he was smiling broadly. "It's probably one of the things Madge is always picking up in the five and ten. She haunts that emporium, for she's a thrity soul as well as an artistic one, and she avers she find simply ravishing things there."

"Madge, dear, I wouldn't have such a brute for a husband." Edith rushed forward, playing up—to whom? I asked the question even as she stooped to the fragments upon the floor. "It's that lovely Venetian thing, that translucent green. I admired it so much tonight. I don't wonder you're upset, Mr. Veritzen. But I'll help you find something like it. I know the shops pretty well. But Madge, have you seen my bag? I left it in here, I am sure, and when I missed it I made Dickey bring me over here to let me in with his key. I had no idea you people were here or I wouldn't have dragged him away. They're holding the game for him, but I'm dummy this hand at my table. Oh, there's my bag!"

With a clever affectation of a girlish laugh she brought up an exquisite little evening bag from the depths of an overstuffed chair. I was sure that she had left it there for an excuse to bring Dicky back to the apartment and arouse my jealousy. Then my absence with Philip Veritzen had given her an opportunity she welcomed avidly.

"Coming back with me, Ede, now that you've found your property?" Dicky was still smiling, but his eyes were stormy. "They'll be paging me in a minute."

"No, run along, that's a dear," she said with an easy air that infuriated me. "I'll reconstruct this bowl so that I'll have a good idea of it when I go shopping for Mr. Veritzen."

She looked up at the great producer with a girlish appeal which I conceded was most effective, and he smiled down at her.

"I shan't be needed here any longer, then," he said easily. I'll go back with you, Graham. Thank you so much, Mrs. Graham, for letting me unload my troubles upon you. Mrs. Underwood assured me you would see a way out, and I shall tell her she is, indeed, a prophet."

"Oh, Madge is a mental first-aid kit," my husband laughed, and I wondered if Edith and Philip Veritzen caught the venom in his voice that I knew was there. "Don't spend too much time 'reconstructing' that bowl, Ede. You'll find its fellows—any number of them, I tell you—at the five and ten."

"You are pleased to be facetious, Graham," Mr. Veritzen said, and I saw the little sardonic grin my husband gave when the other man had turned stiffly toward the door. The great theatrical producer, a noted connoisseur of pottery and glass, could not realize that his neglect to notice the bowl which had been almost obscured by the roses had led him into a ridiculous error. For the bowl had come from the five and ten-cent store, where I often find receptacles for flowers which just suit my fancies in color. But I would have given much to know whether Dicky was jesting or whether he really had recognized the bowl's real value? And was Edith Fairfax as ignorant of glass as she appeared while fitting the broken pieces of the bowl together?

Employers Now Favor Reward Won by Results

By B. C. FORBES

THIS Christmas a larger number of companies than ever before are awarding, not blanket bonuses, but bonuses in accordance with the achievements of the individual employe.

In other words, the modern managerial idea is to pay in harmony with results.

Outside of Wall Street houses, the distribution of regular cash bonuses to all and sundry, based on a certain percentage of wages, is not gaining in favor. Numbers of employers have abandoned that plan because they found that workers looked upon such annual bonuses as part and parcel of their pay, something to which they were entitled and for which there was no occasion to feel grateful. Not only so, but the effect of receiving a large lump sum was not always conducive to the true well-being of the recipients. Once, for example, when J. P. Morgan & Co. paid bonuses amounting to a full year's salary, the results were such, it is said, that the firm decided not to repeat their action.

CORPORATIONS whose stock has an established market have turned more and more to giving Christmas bonuses in the form of stock, especially in the case of all those occupying positions of unusual responsibility.

The Steel Corporation, General Electric and General Motors are among the billion-dollar class of organizations that have adopted this system among their higher-salaried men. The Steel Corporation was among the first to sell shares to wage-earners on attractive terms. Since then many others have done the same thing.

I understand that General Motors, General Electric and the Steel Corporation do not have a rigid yard-stick for fixing bonuses according to salary, but that those who have distinguished themselves by outstandingly meritorious service of any kind during the year receive special consideration.

The largest bank in America, the National City of New York has a plan several years ago adopted, which operates similarly, only, the officers all write down how much they think each fellow-officer should receive, and their ideas govern the head of the institution in allocating the bonus fund.

THE basic idea coming more and more into vogue among important corporations is to grant rewards commensurate with the actual service contributed. This supplies stronger incentive than where bonuses are fixed simply at a percentage of salary.

IN dealing with thousands of rank-and-file workers, it is less easy to carry out the principle of making awards in line with each man's merits. Even so, more companies have adopted plans having that objective.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, which is this Christmas distributing $250,000 in bonuses among more than 6,000 employes, rewards each motorman and conductor for operating a car for 30 days without an accident. Extra bonuses are added when no accidents occur for six consecutive 30-day periods and for 12 periods. The late Thomas E. Mitten, who years ago inaugurated what became widely-known as Mitten management, was a pioneer among traction companies in originating rewards for meritorious service.

Many managements would like to be able to put into force an effective plan covering all classes of workers, but they haven't been able to formulate a feasible and equitable arrangement which would be applicable all down the payroll. However, "Where there's a will, there's a way." And probably it will be found possible to make progress after fuller study.

PAYING for suggestions is another means adopted by some companies desirous of recognizing unusual merit. But it has often seemed as if these suggestion payments were unreasonably low.

IT is now universally admitted that the best work is done by employes who have a sense of partnership. This sense of partnership can be best inspired by devising ways and means of granting appropriate rewards for unusually meritorious service—on top of regular profit-sharing or other plans which apply to all, the indifferent, uninterested workers as well as the worthiest worker.

To get results, pay by results.

Pittsburgh Coal Gets River Contracts

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Pittsburgh Coal Company is entering the river transportation business. Two contracts have been closed with large consumers of river coal for the delivery of all their requirements. The Pittsburgh Coal Company will not supply the coal from its own mines but the arrangement is expected to prove profitable since the entire river fleet will be kept in active service.

One of the contracts was closed with the Weirton Steel Company for the towing of its coal supply in barges from mines on the Monongahela River to its steel mills at Weirton, W. Va. The Weirton Company owns the steel barges which are being operated by the coal company under a lease.

The other contract is with the Davison Coke and Iron Company covering the towing of coal requirements for its new by-products coke plant on Neville Island. Two months ago the Davison Company started the operation of the second battery of its new by-products coke plant.

To Ship 3,000,000 Tons

THE towing contracts will be advantageous to all three organizations. The Pittsburgh Coal Company will handle over 3,000,000 tons of coal in the rivers annually including the produce of its own mines.

In past years the Pittsburgh Coal Company moved enormous tonnages of coal on the Monongahela, Allegheny, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. It had branch agencies covering the river system as far south as New Orleans. The development of southern coal producing regions and the establishment of low freight rates was responsible for the loss of most of these markets. Production in recent years has been only about half that of the best period of the company's history when it had the full benefit of both southern and lake markets.

The company is now making efforts to regain a share of its lost business and hopes to recapture some of its former position in the river trade.

To Use Entire Fleet

A LARGE part of the company's fleet of barges and tow boats has been idle for years. The increase in its own river business and the making of the towing contracts will make this equipment profitable. River operations on a large scale will also make it possible for Weirton Steel and Davison Coke to save on their transportation costs.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Coal Company are known to have been planning widespread expansion of their transportation activities for some time. The purchase of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon and Western Railway and the subsequent attempt to secure permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to open a new railway from the Ohio River to Youngstown were part of this program. The more recent attempt to have the government build a canal from the Ohio River to Youngstown was a natural sequel to the failure of the railroad scheme.

Rivers Used In Past

THE attempts to revive river shipments of coal on a large scale recall the activities of former years when Pittsburgh supplied most of the fuel requirements of the South. Great fleets of barges used to be collected at the Point waiting for high water. A rise in the rivers was followed by intense activity as the huge tonnages of coal started to move down stream.

In the very early days when timber was plentiful, barges of coal were sold "including the package." That is, the buyer in the South contracted to take not only the coal but the boat which carried it. At its destination the barges were broken up and used for building purposes. Timber was so cheap that it was not worth while to haul the empty barges up stream.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Sensational Rise In Wheat Due to Lower Argentine Crop Report.

A SENSATIONAL rise in wheat prices in the world's principal grain markets provided one of the day's most pleasant surprises. At Chicago wheat rose some 5½ cents a bushel, the May option going above $1.36 a bushel as contrasted with last Friday's low of $1.26. This spectacular advance had its basis in the unexpectedly bullish nature of the Argentine government report which makes the 1929 crop 143,000,000 bushels as against 309,000,000 bushels last year and the five year average of 220,000,000 bushels. Liverpool was 4¼ to 5d higher and Winnipeg showed about the same measure of advance as recorded at Chicago. Crops in all the principal wheat producing countries have fallen far under the 1928 level with our own yield indicating a drop of almost 200,000,000 bushels.

The effect of last week's drop of $71,000,000 in loans on securities is shown to have been more than offset by an increase of $78,000,000 in such advances in this week's consolidated statement of reporting member banks in the reserve the result in the net is that loans are now back again to approximately the same level as ruled on October 16, last, previous to the rise of $1,250,000,000 in the ensuing fortnight, which has since been liquidated. All other loans or commercial borrowings show a further shrinkage of $106,000,000 for the week, bringing the total contraction in business borrowings for the last four weeks to roughly $420,000,000.

SELLING to record losses for income tax purposes has perhaps been a more important factor in the market than most people realize, the bulk of it coming reputedly from investment trust sources. It is reasoned, therefore, that, unless these corporations have picked up other stocks in place of securities disposed of, the majority of them will close the year with liberal quantities of ready cash on hand. Under the law stocks sold to register losses for tax purposes cannot be repurchased within 30 days of the date of sale. Incidentally, the aim of several of the more successful of the trusts has been to go into 1930 with as large a part of their assets as possible in the shape of actual cash.

The feeling still prevails in local speculative circles that the short selling which has come into the market in the last week or so has been for most part of a poor character. This contention is based on reports filtering in from the Middle West that quite a few houses in that part of the country have been advising customers to get out of long stock and take a position on the short side of the market. This brand of selling, according to Wall Street theorists, almost invariably paves the way for a substantial rally, if for no other reason than that traders, not used to foraging on the bear side, are likely to run at the first sign of a turn.

ALTHOUGH Ford Motor Company has not issued its November production figures, trade estimates place the total at around 110,000 units against 115,000 for all other manufacturers. This indicates Ford's production for the first time this year was less than in the like month of preceding year. It also indicates Ford's output presented close to 50 per cent of the total production of the industry during the month, and emphasizes the increasing percentage of business Ford obtained during the last half of 1929. Current estimate compares with Ford's production of 177,482 in October and is slightly more than half the record month's output of 205,634 units in August. Other manufacturers last month showed a decline from the 217,051 units in October.

The feature of National Enameling and Stamping Company's common stock position is the wide spread between book value and market price. Book value is nearly $117 compared with a market price around $26. Per share equity in net quick assets figured on the basis of the balance sheet of June 30 last, amounts to $31,84, or nearly $6 above the market price. The year 1929 will be the second full year of operation of National Enameling since its separation from Granite City Steel Company, and a marked gain in earnings available for common will be shown over 1928. Last year there was $147,012 available for common after preferred dividends but before federal taxes. National pays $2 annually on the common.

BEAR COVERING SENDS STOCK PRICES UP

Large List of Active Shares Reaches Higher Level—Trading Falls Off

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The stock market provided a little belated Christmas cheer for bull traders today when a long list of active stocks were marked up 1 to 7 points. Curiously, however, it was the covering operations of the bears that provided the chief stimulus to the advance. The rubbers were the only important issues that failed to participate in the rally, losses of a point or two being quite common in this group.

Trading started off at a fairly brisk pace, but quieted down in the afternoon as traders left the floor to participate in the various holiday celebrations around the financial district. Short selling was relatively light in volume.

BIG RAIL EXPENDITURE

The day's business news was mixed in character. One of the most important developments of the day was the announcement that the Van Sweringen roads proposed to spend $100,000,000 for new equipment next year. Directors of the United States Leather and United Profit Sharing Companies suspended dividends, due at this time.

The Iron Age review stated that "further increases in specifications from the automobile industry, large awards of fabricated steel, additional strength in scrap and drastic reductions on consumers' stocks are the encouraging features of the steel market." Mill operations have been sharply curtailed with many units idle for the entire week, it adds, pointing out that the severity of the fourth quarter decline in production is regarded as the best promise of an early recovery.

Call money opened at 5½ per cent, the highest renewal rate since November 18, with a more plentiful supply of funds available. Time money was unchanged, but an advance of ⅛ of 1 per cent took place in the medium maturities of bankers' acceptances.

STEEL ADVANCES

U. S. Steel common, which touched 156⅝ in yesterday's decline, crossed 164 today. International Combustion preferred jumped 7 points, Atchison 6½ and General Electric, Auburn Auto, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit (old stock), Simmons and Otis Elevator sold 5 or more points above yesterday's final quotations. American Water Works, American Can, American Tobacco B and Columbian Carbon also recorded substantial gains, while Sears, Roebuck made up an early loss of 3 points.

Midland Steel Products preferred broke 15 points, Wright Aero 10 and Southern Dairies A 4⅝, the last-named touching a new 1929 low at 18.

Ford's 1929 Output Near 2,000,000 Cars

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The Ford Motor Company will close the current year with production of around 2,000,000 units, or 1,200,000 greater than in 1928. This gain alone is greater than the total increase to be shown by the motor industry in its record performance of the current year. Since automobile production for the industry is estimated at close to 5,700,000 units against 4,601,141 last year, predictions are heard that Ford will make 50 per cent of next year's output in the industry with indications that the industry as a whole will produce fewer cars.

Receiver Appointed For Detroit Brokers

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—The Detroit Security and Trust Company has been appointed receiver for Backus, Fordon & Co., members of the Detroit Stock Exchange. The firm had made application for voluntary receivership earlier in the day.

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—Resignations of Ralph Fordon as president of Detroit Stock Exchange and of Backus, Fordon & Co. as members were accepted at a meeting of the board of governors.

Max Stringer was elected president to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Fordon.

Florsheim to Show $5.92 on Common

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Milton S. Florsheim, chairman of the Florsheim Shoe Company, stated the common stock of the company would earn $5.92 a share after all charges, taxes and preferred dividends for the fiscal year, as compared with $5.25 a share for the previous year. Mr. Florsheim added that the company's new plant for manufacture of women's welt shoes is beginning production.

U. S. Leather Omits Class A Dividend

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Directors of the United States Leather Company have omitted the regular quarterly $1 dividend on the Class "A" stock, due at this time.

Un. Profit Sharing Dividend Is Passed

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The United Profit Sharing Company has passed the semi-annual dividend of 60 cents due on the common stock at this time.

WALL STREET HEARS

That several large pools have suspended operations until after the turn of the year.

That quiet accumulation has been under way in a few of the leading motor shares in anticipation of the usual bullish demonstration prior to the opening of the New York show.

That contrary to the custom of recent years, the proceeds of stocks sold for tax loss purposes have not generally been reinvested in other issues.

Argentina Floats Loan in London

LONDON, Dec. 24.—The Argentine government has negotiated a 5,000,000 pounds loan with Baring Brothers and the Morgan & Grenfell interests here, according to the semi-official La Epoca, of Buenos Aires.

ROME, Dec. 24.—The International Institute of Agriculture today receivied a report from the Argentine government on the wheat crop showing that the crop for the current year is poor.

The crop was estimated at 3,900,000 metric tons, which is nearly 4,500,000 tons less than last year and 2,000,000 less than the five-year average.

Advise Buying of Good Stocks Now

H. S. Edwards & Co. issued the following comment on the market today: "The persistent selling of stocks in the past few days, we believe, is not due so much to tax selling and short selling as it is to liquidation of weak accounts by banks which are preparing for the annual call by the Treasury Department on January 1. We believe it to be a good opportunity to buy good stocks from now until the end of the year owing to the present conditions."

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Short covering in preparation for the holiday promoted a substantial rally in the Curb Market, centering in the utilities, today, but the movement appeared to have been completed by early afternoon and the market again turned reactionary.

The market was comparatively active for a time during the morning, but turned extremely dull soon after midday.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

DOCTOR'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE

The success of Dr. William S. Watson, of the Fairfax Apartment Hotel, in the medical profession was the cause of his abandonment of his wife, Mrs. Marie S. Watson, of 134 Noble avenue, Crafton, after 17 years of married life, according to her testimony in Common Pleas Court. She was granted a divorce by Judge James B. Drew on the grounds of desertion.

Dr. Watson left for a vacation in July, 1927, to be gone three or four weeks, and at the end of that time, instead of returning home, he wrote her that he did not intend to return to her, Mrs. Watson testified. He made his home at Webster Hall upon his return, she said. They were married July 2, 1910, and lived at 70 Neptune street, East End. They had no children.

PIANO COURSE CREATES STIR

Fraternal organizations, women's clubs, schools and orphanages are investigating the possibilities of the modern method of teaching music.

Subscriptions to the Sun-Telegraph are being sought by many boys and girls throughout the city who wish to learn to play the piano without cost.

Music teachers are urging beginners to take the Wurlitzer course for three months, to then continue with individual and private lessons in the more advanced training periods.

Three subscriptions to the Sun-Telegraph entitle any boy or girl in the city to take this two year course, condensed in a three month period. The Sun-Telegraph, teachers say, has thus enabled thousands of boys and girls to escape the long and tiresome preliminary drill and skip quickly to advanced, easy, study.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Seven New Managers. | Honor Local Officials.
Yale Chiefs Disagree. | Hargrave to Be Busy.
W. & J.'s Graceful Act. | Hoppe Out of Tourney.

PILOT SHIFTS ALMOST EQUAL RECORD

IF it may be taken for granted that Wilbert Robinson is to remain on the managerial job in Brooklyn, and that the appointment of Heinie Wagner completes the list of changes among the major league pilots for the 1930 pennant races, no fewer than seven of the 16 clubs will start out next spring with new skippers who have been installed since the wind-up of the 1929 campaign. It has been published that there have been eight changes since the close of last season, but that is incorrect, as Jewel Ens took charge of the Pittsburgh team long before the 1929 finish, or on August 27, when Donie Bush resigned.

Heinie Wagner

However, the major loops come very close to the record even with the total reduced to the seven changes that have taken place with Bob Shawkey succeeding Miller Huggins at the head of the Yankees, Donie Bush supplanting Russell Blackburne with the White Sox, Bill McKechnie following Emil Fuchs with the Braves, Gabby Street taking McKechnie's place with the Cardinals, Dan Howley jumping into the shoes of Jack Hendricks with the Reds, Bill Killefer assuming Howley's post with the Browns, and Wagner taking up Carrigan's job with the Red Sox.

THE total of seven new managers presented in the big show at the beginning of a season has been beaten only once during the period that the present two big leagues have occupied the field together. The record was established at eight after the season of 1926, three of the shifts taking place in the National and five in the American.

In the National at that time, Bush took the place of McKechnie as leader of the Pirates, Bob O'Farrell relieved Rogers Hornsby with the Cardinals, and Stuffy McInnis succeeded Art Fletcher with the Phillies. In the American, Eddie Collins gave way to Ray Schalk with the White Sox, Ty Cobb stepped down in favor of George Moriarty as boss of the Tigers, Tris Speaker relinquished the Indian reins to Jack McCallister, Lee Fohl turned over the Red Sox post to Carrigan, and the Brown managerial title was transferred from George Sisler to Howley.

YALE'S football chiefs do not agree on the merits of the present rule that prohibits the defending team from advancing the ball after it has recovered the leather on a fumble by the offensive side. Tad Jones, chairman of the advisory football committee, favors the regulation, and Adam Walsh, line coach and former Notre Dame captain, is opposed to it.

"The rule has worked out beautifully, in my opinion," Jones says. "No error in football should be punished more severely than by the loss of the ball. This rule has made possible more daring football and bolder plays."

Tad Jones

WALSH advocates the abolition of the rule. "The first lesson a football player learns is how to handle a ball," he says. "This is stressed day after day by coaches handling the backfield men. If they fumble, let them suffer by it. It is held that a fumble is only a mechanical error by one player and that the entire team should not suffer for his mistake. That is little short of ridiculous. A football team is a unit, like any other athletic team or business. When one man makes a mistake his team mates or his business mates also suffer. Why should they not suffer also in football? The present rule also places the linemen further back in football oblivion. It was once the ambition of a lineman to pick up a fumble and run as far as he could with it. A season marked by the recovery of several fumbles by linemen makes all their work a success as they see it."

THE athletic authorities of Washington and Jefferson College dehelp us a great deal. I can't agree with them. His experience and sportsmanship in consenting to the postponement of their scheduled 1930 football game with Pitt until 1931 in order to make it possible for the Panthers to meet Ohio State in Columbus next year

Pitt had signed a contract for a W. & J. game in 1930, as usual, and, of course, would have stood by it and passed up the date offered by Ohio State. But W. & J.'s action in releasing the local university from its agreement and consenting to take a date in 1931 instead settled the problem in a manner that was satisfactory and gratifying all around.

WASH-JEFF always has been noted for its high principle and sportsmanship, and in the light of its latest action it deserves that reputation now more than ever. It will be the first time since the no-game season of 1904 that the Presidents have not been seen in action here against Pitt, and the schedule of the Panthers loses temporarily one of its oldest and most popular features.

However, the 1930 season will not be wholly devoid of an appearance by the Red and Black, as the Washingtonians will come to The Stadium to play Carnegie Tech. Pitt gives up a home game by the new arrangement. It will play Waynesburg, Western Reserve, Notre Dame, Carnegie Tech and Penn State at The Stadium, and West Virginia, Syracuse, Nebraska and Ohio State abroad.

Bubbles Hargrave

THERE is plenty of work ahead for Bubbles Hargrave as a member of the Yankee squad, according to the plans of Manager Bob Shawkey, as the latter outlined them to Ed Murphy. "Hargrave figures prominently in my scheme of things," said Shawkey. "He is the most experienced catcher on my staff, and I look for him to be of great assistance to our young pitchers. He'll do a lot of catching when our recruits are pitching in the spring practice games, and he'll team up with the younger pitchers during the regular season.

SOME fans may think that Bubbles, because he is a veteran, will not help us a great deal. I can't agree with them. He experience and knowledge of how to handle pitchers, particularly young slabmen, is, in my opinion, going to make him a valuable member of the Yanks."

In addition, Hargrave will be kept busy with coaching duties when he is not in the game, and it is also certain that he will be called upon often to fill pinch-hitting roles. His average of .369 made in 101 games with St. Paul last season shows that he still carries his old punch.

THE appointment of John P. Egan to serve as field judge in the big Tournament of Roses game between Pitt and Southern California, is another tribute to the local attorney, who is recognized by football men everywhere as one of the fairest and most capable officials in the country.

As Egan also was one of the men picked to handle the Pitt-Stan-

Fans Fail Butler Y Quint; Disbands

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 24.—Failure of the fans in Butler to patronize its games has caused the Butler Y basketball team to be disbanded by the officials, according to an announcement today. Bert Bohler, director of athletics at the local Y. M. C. A., stated that the fans did not support good attractions, and that the team could not afford to continue. The Y played three games, defeating Waynesburg, 28-26, and losing to Grove City, 23-13, and to Geneva, 45-22.

LOCAL BOXER MAY GO TO MAYO CLINIC

Buck McTiernan, Swissvale welterweight, is seriously ill at Hot Springs, Ark., according to word received from him by his manager, P. J. (Bunny) Buntach, last night. Buntach immediately ordered him under the care of two physicians and will leave tomorrow night for the famous health resort to take care of his protege. He said today that unless he shows improvement within a few days he will take him to the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for observation as to the real nature of his ailment.

Buck McTiernan

TALKS WITH MANAGER

Buntach talked with McTiernan over the long-distance telephone late last night and said the boxer scarcely could talk above a whisper, and admitted that he was in poor health. He has not been able to take the baths at the Spa since last Thursday.

McTiernan was stricken ill last spring following a bout with Andy DiVodi, of New York, at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock. He suffered from tonsilitis and rheumatism and underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils. He was o the sidelines for several months and then returned to the ring, knocking out Tony Ross in one round at McKeesport and Georgie Fifield in four rounds at Motor Square Garden.

SENT TO RESORT

Then he lost a disputed decision to Farmer Joe Cooper at Motor Square Garden and followed this up a few weeks ago with a sorry showing against Mickey Solmen at the Moose Temple, being knocked out in three rounds. His lack of spirit in this bout was much remarked and he was sent to Hot Springs to regain his health and strength.

Until Buntach heard the bad news about McTiernan's condition, it was believed the boxer was progressing favorably on the road to the recovery of his old form.

DOG TRACKS TO OPEN

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—T. L. Weaver, president of the St. Petersburg Kennel Club, announced here today that the "corporation system" of operating racing meets would be given a trial at dog races the Kennel Club will open January 1.

At the same time, Frank Simmons, formerly of Chicago, announced that the "corporation system" would be inaugurated also at a track he plans to open near here about February 1.

The "corporation system," recently ruled lawful by Attorney General Fred H. Davis, was originated by a group of attorneys here. The plan calls for two corporations. Stock in the first is sold before a speed contest. The issue is bought up by the second company, after the race, at whatever profit it desires to give.

MIAMI TO OPEN

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The Biscayne Kennel Club will reopen its dog racing plant Christmas night for the second time this year, but use of the "corporation system" of operation was problematical.

OPENING POSTPONED

POMPANO, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Opening of the scheduled two weeks' race meet at Pompano track has been postponed from Christmas Day to Saturday, December 28, Jimmy Monroe, track secretary, announced last night. Inability to get the track in shape by Christmas Day was given as the reason.

Rice-Grain 'Cards' To Be Presented Pitt Gridders

When the Pitt football team invades California, the members will have calling cards written on rice grains to introduce themselves to the natives. A good friend of the team, E. L. Blystone, of Ardara, Pa., has sent each member of the official party a grain of rice with the name of the player, his position and the name of the team written upon it.

For Coach Sutherland he has made a special card from the same material, having on its surface more than 150 words.

Blystone claims the world record for writing upon a grain of rice. He has written 1,200 letters upon a single grain.

Last year he presented each one of the Georgia Tech team with one, and the Yellow Jackets returned with a win. He hopes that the Pitt team will have the same good fortune.

LOCAL, N. Y. BOXERS SPLIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Pittsburgh and New York boxers broke even in their inter-city amateur boxing bouts at the New York Athletic Club last night.

George Warner, of New York, enabled the home boys to gain an even break by his victory over Tony Marino, of Pittsburgh, in the 112-pound class bout, the final in the series. Prior to this contest, Pittsburgh led 2 to 1.

Marino assumed the aggressive and threw right and left hand punches at Warner's face and body, but the latter soon solved his opponent's style, and took the blows on his gloves and elbows.

In the second round, Warner took the lead, and swarmed all over his rival. The third round found both boxers battling hard, but Warner's cleaner punching enabled him to win the round and the bout. The summary:

112-pound class—George Warner, New York, defeated Tony Marino, Pittsburgh.
118-pound class—Ed Balot, New York, defeated Joe Bazone, Pittsburgh.
126-pound class—Joe Gaudy, Pittsburgh, defeated Joe Collenstein, New York.
135-pound class—Joe Spiegal, Pittsburgh knocked out Walter McGroary, New York second round.

DORAIS DENIES RUMORS

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—Coach Gus Dorais, of the University of Detroit football team, has denied reports current throughout the Midwest that he would succeed Jimmy Phelan as coach of football at Purdue University.

HELEN WILLS MOODY, JR., IN HIDING

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Nobody, it seemed, knew the whereabouts of Frederick S. Moody, Jr., and his wife, the former Helen Wills, today, or, if they did, it was not being divulged.

The last seen of Moody and his famous bride they were speeding southward out of Oakland yesterday at a high rate of speed, bound, it was thought, for San Pedro, where the yacht Galatea is riding at anchor. It is believed the newlyweds will board the ship there, nobody knows exactly when, for a honeymoon cruise down the California and Mexico coast.

With only relatives of both families present, Miss Wills was married to the young San Francisco broker at St. Clement's Chapel yesterday.

There was a great scurrying about, with nervous cameramen doing most of the scurrying, tripping over tripods and all but blocking the exit of the little church.

Moody appeared greatly concerned about the great acivity, but "Queen" Helen, accustomed to cameramen and their whims, "took it with a smile."

Moody and his bride hurried into a waiting automobile and slid away on a veering course. The chauffeur later said he took the newlyweds to a garage where they secured another automobile for a continuation of their journey.

Bass, Morgan Case To Come Up Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The New York Athletic Commission is to take action today on the recent Bass-Morgan fight in which the junior-lightweight title changed hands with the odds ½ to 1 on the challenger. Both fighters' purses still are being held up.

STAGG OFF FOR COAST

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Coach A. A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago, has left Chicago for California, where he will spend his annual vacation. The Grand Old Man of the Midway will witness the Army-Stanford and Pittsburgh-Southern California games.

Don Miller, Irish Four Horseman, May Coach Case

CLEVELAND, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Don Miller, of Cleveland, member of the famous Four Horsemen of Notre Dame in 1924, has been offered the position of head football coach at Case School of Applied Science here, it was learned today.

Officials at the school refused to comment further than to admit that negotiations with Miller are under way.

Miller served as assistant coach at Ohio State University this year and in 1928 was backfield coach at Georgia Tech.

Most of the El Paso school's players have gone home for the holidays. The Mexican team will play another team instead, and on Friday will go to Dallas.

JONES CHASES SPECTATORS FROM FIELD

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

PALO ALTO, Dec. 24.—Capt. L. McCall Jones, who goes under the name of Biff among the less erudite of us, is getting very, very tough. He is actually chasing the boys out of the ball park here, where his Cadet football team is getting ready to play Stanford Saturday afternoon.

To make it worse, he is even chasing Stanford guys out, threatening 'em with bayonets when they won't hustle. Yes, our Biff is a very tough Biff when he is mad, and he is mad now.

Maybe it was the disappointments of the trip across the country that have soured the usually genial captain. Maybe it's the fact that no one out here seems particularly impressed with his team's chanses against Stanford. But whatever it is, Capt. Biff is very sore and is very determined that no one is going to watch his team drill and that no one is going to snap any pictures of the boys.

TEMPLETON OUSTED

The Army went through a workout yesterday morning, which was held up for a time while Capt. Jones and his men-at-arms chased Dink Templeton, who is the track coach at Stanford, out of Dink's own stadium. After they got Dink out, the boys were put through some strenuous setting-up exercises and then given a drill in fundamentals.

Meanwhile, Pappy Warner, cussing his rheumatics, his tackles and his halfbacks, gave the Cardinals a rather lengthy workout. Pop didn't chase the onlookers, because there weren't any. They can see the Cards any time. And besides, Coast newspapers have Pop pretty well broken of his Eastern habit of holding secret sessions and growling at the picture boys.

Although the game is three days away, tentative lineups have been figured out for both teams. Stanford, with Taylor in at center in the stead of the Sniffling Heinecke, very likely will line up with Muller and Preston guarding the wings; Klabau and Thompson bustin' 'em at the tackles and with Bardin and Driscoll at the guards.

MAY REPEAT LINEUP

Hustling Herb Fleischhacker, Rotherti Frentrup and Smalling will be in the backfield.

I see no reason why Biff Jones should not start about the same lineup against Stanford as he used against Notre Dame. It is this combination that has given the best service all season and not extraordinarily good service at that.

Carlmark and Messinger as ends; Price and Perry, tackles; Humber and Hillsinger, guards, and either Miller or Lazar, at center, is a good bet for starting forward wall.

Cagle and Hutchison will be certain halfback starters, and the old war horse, Murrell, will be at fullback. The quarterback post will be awarded either O'Keefe or

TARTANS, TRIP 'CUT,' AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Carnegie Tech's football squad, which lost, 45 to 13, to the Southern California Trojans at Los Angeles, December 14, arrived back home late last night, hours ahead of schedule. The Tartans' train was not due until 5:45 this morning, but time was saved when a visit to the Garden of the Gods in Colorado was canceled because of the heavy snow.

LEAVE FOR HOMES

TARTAN LAUDS TROJANS

Murray Armentrout, Tech halfback star, who was one of the heroes of the Plaid's first half 13-13 tie, praised the Trojans as a powerful team. He said its superior numbers in the matter of reserve material had much to do with encompassing the overwhelming of the invading hosts in the second half. The heat, he said, also was a contributing factor, but he asked that this be not construed as an alibi.

He added that, in his opinion, the Pitt-Southern California game is a tossup. "Pitt, despite its great team, has only an even chance to win under the conditions," he said, "and, if it does, it will be entitled to a great deal of credit."

While the Tartan gridders were getting accustomed to the cold weather into which their return brought them, Coach Ralph Hogan, of the basketball squad, was busy making arrangements for a practice session tomorrow evening, instead of Thursday as originally planned. With the opening game carded for Friday night, Hogan felt that more than one practice would be necessary to put the men on the proper edge for a hard game, and that is what they will face in Youngstown against the strong Y. M. C. A. quint, composed of former college stars.

Most of the basketball dependables reside in or near the city, but the men who will start at the guard positions will have some traveling to do to get here. They are Wayne High, of Reading, Pa., and Elmer Schumacher, of Southbridge, Mass. Both men have signified their willingness to get back a day earlier.

PANTHERS WORK INDOORS

Capt. George Nease and Logan Webster look like the starting forwards, although Jimmy Leonard will get into the fray before it is over. Ralph Merten, tallest man on the squad, will jump center.

Snow drove the University of Pittsburgh football team indoors again yesterday for scrimmage against the plays of the University of Southern California, opponents of the Panthers in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena New Year's Day. Early today there was another indoor workout and a light warming up drill will be held at the Stadium Christmas morning, winding up the home preparations. The squad will leave for the Pacific Coast tomorrow night.

DALLAS ARRANGES PARTY

The Chamber of Commerce of Dallas, Tex., has arranged to entertain the Pitt football team and the party traveling with it on its arrival there. The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, which had telegraphed the Dallas chamber informing it that the itinerary of Pitt's football heroes lay through Dallas, yesterday received the following telegram in response to its suggestion:

"It will be our pleasure to entertain the entire personnel of your party at dinner Friday evening, December 27, at 6 o'clock, in the Dallas Athletic Club. We will appreciate your extending the invitation on our behalf to the University of Pittsburgh party. The telegram was signed by Homer S. Wade, general manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce. The invitation from Dallas was communicated to the football authorities at Pitt last evening and was promptly accepted.

DUKES PREPARE

Duquesne University's Red and Blue basketeers have a new experience in store for them Friday night when they meet the fast Adrian College five in the Bluff gym, the only college game of the week in Pittsburgh. The Dukes will be playing their first of a number of games without the services of Capt. Ganzy Benedict and probably for the first time in several seasons that the highly reliable forward has been missing from the game. Although he is recovering rapidly from the injury to his face received in an automobile accident several weeks ago, Ganzy is not expected to see action for some time.

Since the Dukes already have worked off three games of their schedule while on their Western trip against Iowa University, Loyola University of Chicago and Elmhurst College, Friday's game will be the first scheduled contest without the services of Benedict.

the best opponent obtainable in the main bout. Roberts' foe will be Freddie Edwards, of West Virginia.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, has completed his bill for his show in the Palisades Arena Thursday night. He has Joe Trippe, of Rochester, N. [illegible] and Larry Madge, of Cleveland in the 10-round windup; Jackie Murray, of the Hill, and Cowboy Joe Cannall, of Youngstown, in the semi-final; Stanley Certo, of Donora, who has scored a knockout in each of his two other appearances in the Tube City, against Billy Flannagan, of Clearfield, in the second event, and Georgie Tomosky, of Wilmerding against Vito Mazzeo, of Cleveland, in the opener.

Unless Young Jack Thompson, the Negro welterweight, is in much better condition than he was in for his bout with Billy White at Motor Square Garden recently, his battle with Jackie Fields for the welterweight title in Madison Square Garden, New York, January 3, shapes up as a setup for Fields. They are booked for 15 rounds, and Thompson blew up after a few rounds against a mediocre opponent here.

MASSEY TO BOX BATTALINO

Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, who boxes Johnny Datto, the Filipino, in the main bout of the show at the Arena in Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon, is signed to box Battling Battalino, the featherweight champion, in a non-title bout in the same ring, January 20. In other bouts on tomorrow's card, Matt Adgie boxes Billy Jones, Baby Joe Gans takes on Harry (Kid) Brown and Young Ketchel engages Stuffy McInnes of Scotland.

The winner of the Johnny Risko-Tuffy Griffiths fight in Madison Square Garden Friday night may be the opponent of Jack Sharkey in that Miami bout, February 27, and wouldn't it be just like Risko to win and again spoil the best-laid plans of the promoters, who have been booming Tuffy into a top spot as a contender?

TITLE COSTLY FOR BASS

No wonder the New York commission held up the purses of Benny Bass and Tod Morgan pending an investigation of their battle in Madison Square Garden last Friday night in which Bass rallied after a bad first round and scored a knockout victory to win the world junior-lightweight title in the second round. The rules of the commission stipulate that in titular matches the champion shall receive 37½ per cent of the receipts and the challenger 12½. In this bout, Bass took 50 per cent, out of which he agreed to pay Morgan 37½ per cent of the gross if Morgan retained the title and $35,000 flat if the title passed to Benny. The house grossed only $28,000, including tax, which means that Bass dragged down about $13,000 for his 50 per cent, and had to add $22,000 to it out of his pocket to make up Morgan's purse.

How to Play Basketball

The backboard shot-less accurate at a distance than the direct shot

When is a backboard shot most feasible?

Answered by

DR. JAMES NAISMITH,

Inventor of Basketball, University of Kansas.

The only time when the carom shot is really valuable is when the player is near and at the side of the goal. Any deviation in direction is exaggerated as the distance increases and is thus less accurate.

The rebound introduces another chance for inaccuracy.

The main difficulty in making direct shots is that the aim is above the basket with no special point, except an imaginary one, at which to aim and at which to throw the ball.

In the carom shot there is a point, in plain sight, at which to throw the ball. This eliminates to a large extent the guess work as to the point at which to aim.

The backboard was first introduced for the purpose of keeping the spectators in the gallery from interfering with, or assisting in, the attempt at goal. It was made of screen netting and by constant use a groove was made into which the ball could be thrown along which the ball would run to a goal. This gave a decided advantage to the home team. When the rule required a rigid surface there was no advantage and the carom was abandoned except in the case above.

WILLIE HOPPE, TABERSKI LEAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, gained a big lead in the first two blocks of his 1,500-point billiards match with Ralph Greenleaf, world champion, here yesterday. Last night Taberski led by 250 to 128. The match will be concluded Sunday night.

Taberski won both of yesterday's blocks, 125 to 72, in the afternoon and 125 to 56 last night.

Willie Hoppe gained a lead of 25 points over Welker Cochran in their 200-point three cushion billiards match last night. Hoppe, taking both afternoon and evening blocks, ran up a total of 100 to 75 for Cochran.

Hoppe won the afternoon block, 50 to 43, in 55 innings. His high run was 5; Cochran's 6. The score last night was 50 to 32 in 34 innings. Each had a high run of 6.

The match will conclude with two blocks today. On Thursday Hoppe and Cochran will begin a 400-point match with two blocks on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Adam Walsh May Get Georgetown Berth

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—The ever-growing group of Rockne-trained men serving as football coaches throughout the country may soon include the name of Adam Walsh, captain of the famous 1924 Irish eleven.

Walsh, who enjoyed great success as line coach at Yale this year, today was seriously considering an offer to take Lou Little's place at Georgetown University. Walsh himself was authority for the statement that the deal had been pending for two weeks. He declined to disclose the details of the offer.

Walsh's contract at Yale has another year to run, but John M. Gates, graduate director of athletics, is quoted as saying the contract would not be used to prevent a change.

TUNNELTON, W. Va., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Tunnelton High School defeated Kingwood at basketball here last night by a baseball score. The tally, 4 to 3, was said to have set a low scoring record in this section.

Inability of either team to penetrate the other's defense kept the scoring down. Only one field goal was made during the game, that by Harold Miller, Tunnelton forward, in the last quarter.

PIRATES MEET DETROIT SIX THURSDAY

By CARL W. SHATTO.

A second helping of Christmas dinner and a big load of Christmas cheer are the only targets at which the Pirate icemen will aim today and tomorrow. On Thursday, however, the Bucs will shed their peace-on-earth attitude, don their battle togs and an assortment of stern visages, and seek to collect some of that renowned salve of the vanquished—revenge.

The appearance of the Detroit Cougars here will be the signal for the local puckmen's transformation. The Pirates were handed a 6-1 setback in Detroit Sunday night, and Hib Milks, manager pro tem, and his skaters do not propose to permit the Cougars to repeat the performance when they make their season's debut at Duquesne Garden Thursday night.

MILKS AT HELM

Milks took over the managerial reins Saturday night when Pilot Frank Frederickson went to the St. Michael's Hospital, in Toronto, to undergo an operation for a knee injury which he sustained about two weeks ago. Hib will remain at the helm until December 31, at which time Frederickson expects to be able to quit the hospital and return to Pittsburgh.

While Milks is making his local debut as a manager, Bert McCaffery, defense stalwart, will make his farewell appearance as a Pirate. McCaffery has been traded to Les Canadiens for Gordon Fraser, and he is to join the Flying Frenchmen on Saturday.

Bert came here during the 1927-28 campaign, figuring in a Detroit-Pittsburgh deal in which the Pirates gave up Alex McKinnon. The hard-working defender's many friends probably will be out to see him end his career as a Corsair.

FRASER VERSATILE

Fraser, a sturdy performer who can do his stuff either at defense or on the front line, played as a Chicago Hawk before being acquired by Les Canadiens. He is to join the Pirates in New York Sunday.

Johnny MacKinnon, ambitious backfield star who was playing the best hockey of his career when a sprained ankle forced him out of action about two weeks ago, is expected to return to the lineup in Thursday night's joust. Although a defense man, he ranks with the Bucs' best goal-getters, and his return to action will greatly enhance the locals' chances of evening the score with the Detroiters.

The Cougars are to meet the Americans in New York tonight, but it is not likely that Lionel Conacher and his mates will be able to give the Michiganders more than a brisk workout. The Pirates experienced little difficulty in handing the Americans an 8-1 setback in their only meeting this year, so it is not likely that tonight's joust will 'soften up" the Cougars to any great extent.

Sponsors of the Commercial-Industrial League at a special meeting last night decided to operate for the balance of the season with six teams, namely Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, Carnegie Steel, Real Estate Savings and Trust, Potter Title and Trust, Dravo Construction and Reick-McJunkin. Three out-of-town and two local teams were considered as applicants for the seventh and eighth franchise holders, but due to the lack of suitable floors it was decided to cut the roster to six clubs.

A new schedule will be adopted this week. The league is enjoying a respite during the holidays and will not resume operations until Thursday, January 2.

A protest filed by Dravo Company against P. & L. E. was tabled pending a full report by the referee in charge of the game.

UNLESS the American Billiard Association changes the stipulation of the contract or entry blank tendered to Willie Hoppe, the latter will not be a contestant in the tournament for the world three-cushion championship, scheduled to start on January 3 in New York. He says the terms of the contract are undesirable. The yearly salary of $6,000 offered to him if he wins does not appeal to him, inasmuch as he would be restricted to playing the three-cushion game and could appear only in academies using a certain brand of equipment.

ARMY DRILLS IN SECRET

Carver, the latter a favorite. You can't keep these Carvers out.

Stanford remains a strong favorite and probably will be stronger by Saturday. Tomorrow is Christmas, but there is little chance of the bettors playing Santa Claus by slicing the odds.

NOT SELL-OUT

Don Liebendorfer's announcement yesterday, which was greeted with awed unbelief that there are still tickets to be had for the game evidently was not a lot of haywire, there actually are some tickets left, and the game is not a sell-out. In fact, they tell me that it won't be.

After one gets tired watching the Sojers and the Cards, the usual thing to do is to trek over and watch the Eastern and Western all-star team practice. Frosty Peters is putting on daily exhibitions of drop-kicking that have even the well-known native sons standing about with their mouths open.

The Eastern team, gathered together and being coached by Andy Kerr and Dickie Hanley, is an impressive looking array. Any team with men of the caliber of Lloyd Brazill, Frosty Peters, Broncho Nygurski and Deb Secrist should be impressive.

LAZAR ARRIVES

Among the civilians who accompanied the Army squad West were Jackson Cannell, Dartmouth football coach, and William Hennage, supervisor of athletics at the same university. They are here to look over the Cardinal eleven, which the Big Green team faces here next November.

The Army squad was brought up to full strength with the arrival of Cadet A. M. Lazar, center, who was delayed at West Point to retake his final examination in mathematics. Lazar made use of both train and airplane to reach Stanford a day later than the main body of players, although he did not leave New York until last Friday.

DIXIE TEAMS GATHER

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—With the arrival ahead of time of the vanguard of players from the North yesterday, interest was heightened in the second annual Dixie classic, all-star football game to be played New Year's Day at Ownby Stadium for the Texas Scottish Rite Crippled Children's Hospital.

Six huskies of the squad that Jimmy Phelan, head mentor of the unbeaten Purdue Big Ten champions, will send against all stars of the Southwest, coached by Ray Morrison, of Southern Methodist University, put in their appearance yesterday and pronounced themselves in fine shape.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Jimmy Slavin [illegible] and Sammy Gelber, 122½, battled through six rounds to a draw decision at the St. Nicholas Arena here last night.

JIM SLATTERY, SCOZZA SCORE KNOCKOUTS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Jimmy Slattery and Lou Scozza, both of Buffalo, and named by the New York State Athletic Commission to fight it out for the light-heavyweight championship of the world, scored knockout victories on an all-star card of four scheduled 10-round bouts here last night.

Slattery stopped Eddie Connors, of Boston, in the second round, while Scozza was declared the winner over Almedro Duquesne, of Cuba, in the first. Bouts were stopped by Referee Lou Magnolia of New York.

Tommy Paul, 122, Buffalo, knocked out Jackie Williams, 128, of Erie, Pa., in the second round. Steve Haliko, 135, of Auburn, scored a technical knockout over Joe Atta, 134½, of Rochester, in the second round.

Sam Bruce, 147, of Buffalo, won a four-round decision over Joe Coffman, 143½, of Buffalo.

GODFREY STOPS HAWKINS

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—George Godfrey, Negro heavyweight, knocked out Long Tom Hawkins, of Akron, O., here last night, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round battle.

Godfrey, although apparently out of condition, proved too much for his angular opponent and sent Hawkins down for the count after winning the first two rounds by a wide margin.

WALLACE KAYOS BUSH

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Roy Wallace, Indianapolis middleweight, knocked out Chester Bush, of Chicago, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round boxing contest here last night. Bush was no match for the local pugilist.

Peter Mike, New York welterweight, defeated Johnny Semas, of Indianapolis, in the eight-round semi-windup.

PAL MOORE WINS

TILT POSTPONED

WEST PENN CUP GAME SLATED SATURDAY

By TOM BIRKS.

The semi-final round of the West Penn senior cup will be played Saturday at the Carnegie High School field when Gallatin and the Heidelberg Eagles hook up. The game will be called at 3 o'clock and the cup committee expects the largest crowd of the season to be on hand. The tilt originally was slated for tomorrow.

There is little interest locally in the doings of the American League. This league was doomed to failure before a ball was kicked in the opening game. When the moguls agreed upon Balsarini, of Heidelberg, as president, and McKay, of the Corinthians, as secretary, the league was busted right there and then.

TROPHY UNAWARDED

After the long drawn-out warfare last season between these two clubs and their managers, which never was settled owing to dilatory tactics of the West Penn Football Association, it was impossible to expect that these men would get along together and have a perfect working agreement with the interests of the league at heart. Fans, at least those in the know, realize that last season's American League championship has not been settled yet, or at least the trophy has not been awarded to Heidelberg, which apparently copped the title.

McKay felt he got a raw deal last season when the governing body passed the buck back to the American League and he naturally is not worrying whether the league operates or not. And that is one of the reasons very few leagues ever organized in this district ever amounted to much. The managers, by playing politics, aided and abetted by the West Penn, stopped any chance of a league loop.

No manager is going to vote against the interests of his own club, and this sportsmanship stuff is all the bunk, when there is a chance to gain everything. The old Keystone League was the greatest loop ever organized and played its seasons without the calling of a league meeting. Managers were willing to stand and fall upon the results of games as played on the field. They had no ax to grind, did not try to break up another club to get its players. The mining type of soccer manager was not of that sort. Look at the wonderful teams that came out of the mines, Cecil, Morgan, Dunlevy, Gallatin, Sturgeon, McDonald, Roscoe, Victory Hill, Manoun, Curry, Castle Shannon, Arden and others.

SHOW PARTIALITY

The managers had little time to keep coming to Pittsburgh to hold meetings to suspend a club. They craved competition, and never made an effort to kill off real competition. But the present-day managers are always crying for the moon, and apparently not willing to win their games on the field of play.

Managers are not so much to blame as the officers of the West Penn Football Association. In those days, men like Ivor Hopkins, Bill Davidson, Bob Brown, Bob Gaitens and a host of others were not connected with any club. They were in there to administer rules without fear or favor.

Now we have present-day officials showing favors to clubs of their liking, and the fans are not slow to notice these affiliations. And some of the remarks made on the side-lines of the games in the last few weeks certainly do not help these officials in their efforts to run the game in this district.

Fans always were suspicious of officials being connected with clubs. Remember the hue and cry made of Sam Parks' affiliation with the Pittsburgh club a couple of year ago? Similar cases can be made at the present time, and it is not good for the game.

In Memoriam 1-B

IN loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, Henry Crooks, who died December 25, 1928.

I have lost my dearest companion,
A life linked with my own:
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
Though parted by hand of death,
In love united still;
His vacant place in my aching heart
None can ever fill.
Sadly missed by his widow and family.

Ex-Senator Percy, Of Mississippi, Dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Leroy Percy, former United States senator from Mississippi, died in a hospital here today. He had been a patient several weeks.

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

IN THE very near future, the good laidies of the W. C. T. U. will issue a pamphlet telling how to make cocktails that "do not inebriate," and they welcome recipes.

Here are some—

Take one pint vanilla ice cream, and place in ordinary fruit jar. Add jigger of hot chocolate sauce, and a smoked herring. Place on warm radiator and let stand over night. Serve in tall glass and shake well after drinking.

Take a pony of maple syrup. Add heaping handful of brown sugar. Place in wash basin filled with cracked ice. Stir with an old rubber. Pull stopper.

Fill cocktail shaker one-half full of fine ice. Crush mint lightly, and sprinkle with boiling water. Add juice of two limes and juice of one orange; whites of two eggs; eight hookers of Gordon. Shake well; remove illegal ingredients with medicine dropper. Serve in fizz glasses.

AUNT BELLA'S VEST POCKET GIFT GUIDE

By Aunt Bella,

(Known to Countless Admirers as "Mrs. Santa Claus.")

IT IS getting so late in the Christmas season that I will have to urge the slugged to do his Christmas shopping early. We still have a large selection of coat lapel badges, or astonishers, for the mentally arrested men folk. Let me call your attention to the Little Giant typewriter, pictured above. It is just the gift for actors, lodge officers, prominent citizens, etc., as every other letter is a capital "I." The balloon nose device is handy for the man who wants to disguise himself and avoid scrutiny. The rheumatic ring, which sells for only 50 cents, can easily be substituted for your wife's wedding ring, and will give her rheumatism. And who does not enjoy a good joke now and then? Heh, heh, heh.

Abundance in Stocking Assures Merry Christmas

Christmas eve is upon us again and it finds us with the symbolic stocking hung in anticipation of many gifts from the Divine Hand whose Natal Day is celebrated. We know the stocking will be filled. Christmas morning likely will disclose that it has been filled even beyond the expectations of most of us. We can only guess, basing our guess on the previous announcement of the millions of dollars that would make up the Christmas payrolls and upon the activity we have observed in the stores that have been acting as the efficient agents of Santa Claus.

We know it will be a Christmas of abundance, but are ignorant of what that abundance will be. That is the delight of Christmas—the element of surprise. We know that all of us, motivated by the love of family and of friends, store up our hearts with affection that we impart to the gifts we hide away and set up a sentimental bar—"Do not open until Christmas." Tomorrow the doors of our hearts open with the cutting of the gay trimmings that conceal these tenders that symbolize at once mundane and Divine love.

We shall have a Merry Christmas. All things necessary have been provided. More than we deserve has been provided, as we shall find tomorrow morning. From our abundance we shall share with others, for that is the spirit of Christmas—the inclination that no home, no matter what the degree of want therein may be, shall be without Christmas cheer on this day of good will and good feeling. To have complete happiness it must be shared. And our wish is that your happiness of Christmas day be warmed with the feeling that generosity has rounded it to full form.

New Building for Gulf In Hoover Policy Line

An important construction project that is in line with President Hoover's program of industrial activity, in which numerous leaders in the financial and commercial world have announced they would co-operate, is the Gulf Refining Company building, to be erected in intersection of Grant street and Seventh avenue, opposite the splendid new Koppers building and the site of the proposed federal building. While this building has long been projected, it can, nevertheless, be considered as a Pittsburgh share in a national expansion development.

Publication of the accepted design of the new building indicates to the public that it is to be a magnificent structure, one that the city can be proud of. A picture of the model shows that it will be a monumental pile of the modern tower type. The visual effect will be that of an artistic sculpture, with a peaked shaft rising gracefully from a base occupying the entire ground area and capped by an ornamental cupola. This will be accomplished by "stepping back" all of the 37 stories above the fourth.

Working plans are said to be in such a state of completeness that bids can be taken at any time, and active work is expected to be begun early in the spring. This will mean many months of work for Pittsburgh artisans.

The project is another of several that, with improvements already completed in Grant street, is transforming and will further transform that thoroughfare from a former street of shacks to one of gigantic business castles.

It would be fine if, at this time, we also could announce early beginning of work on the postoffice. But evidently President Hoover did not call into conference any of those who control the activities of national government industry in that line. Hence, we will make a virtue of necessity and try to be patient. It should not be hard, because we have had years of practice.

Judgment of Senate in Court Issue Vital Matter

An incredible amount of hokum and dust-throwing and stage whispering and sleight-of-hand is being performed in order to make the people think the World Court is something independent of the League of Nations.

Have you ever seen the text of the protocol or treaty which the President has signed and will ask the Senate to ratify taking us into the World Court? Here it is:

"THE MEMBERS OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, through the undersigned, duly authorized, declare their acceptance of the adjoined statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, which was APPROVED by unanimous vote of THE ASSEMBLY OF THE LEAGUE on the 13th day of December, 1920, AT GENEVA.

"Consequently they hereby declare that THEY ACCEPT the JURISDICTION OF THE COURT in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions of the above-mentioned STATUTE AS PASSED BY THE ASSEMBLY OF THE LEAGUE.

"The present protocol, which has been drawn up in accordance with the decision taken by the ASSEMBLY OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS on the 13th of December, 1920, is subject to ratification.

"Each power shall send its ratification to the secretary-general of the LEAGUE OF NATIONS; the latter shall take the necessary steps to notify such ratification to the other signatory powers. The ratification shall be deposited in the archives of the SECRETARIAT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

"The said protocol shall remain open for signature by the MEMBERS OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS and by the states mentioned in the ANNEX to the COVENANT OF THE LEAGUE.

"The statutes of the Court shall come into force as provided in the above-mentioned decision.

"EXECUTED AT GENEVA, in a single copy, the French and English texts of which shall both be authentic.

"Dated December 16, 1920."

(Here follow signatures of League of Nations members and of the United States.)

That is the exact wording of the contract signed by President Hoover's representative in Geneva on December 9, and which the President wants the Senate to ratify.

The people will hold the Senate responsible for knowing that THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS made, owns, pays, manages and uses this "World Court."

The people will hold the Senate responsible for using their own independent judgment whether, as the President seems to imagine:

"Our adherence to the International Court is, as now constituted, not the slightest step toward entry into the League of Nations."

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Frozen Foursomes

GIVING a man golf clubs for Christmas rushes the season without improving his game.

"Bugs" Baer

There are no practical clubs for home use. Some men feel that their style is hampered by the furniture which penalizes a good swing.

A niblick is the best club for a small apartment. Ring Lardner is one of our best mezzanine golfers and wires us that our system is so beneficial that he has added another room to his game.

During our last tournament Ring never got more than two rooms and a lobby off the tee.

The only good feature of indoor driving is that it cuts down your slice.

The vestibule champion who keeps his clubs in the umbrella stand is responsible for many disastrous incidents. You are liable to pick an umbrella out of the stand and then go nuts in the rain trying to open a spoon-brassie.

Grantland Rice, who was the first golfer to wear a miner's lamp in a sand trip, is very courteous while playing 18-floor courses.

Grantland tees up on a footstool and then yells, "Fore," which gives the next door neighbor plenty of time to move out of their apartment.

Some devotees of the sacred divot actually take their Christmas club seriously. No matter how much it snows Bruce Barton never misses a guest card on a Long Island links.

John D. Rockefeller is a winter golfer and has improved his game 60 degrees by going to Florida.

You don't catch John D. playing up North when zero is collapsing. When John drives a ball into a tree he wants to see some cocoanuts fall out.

You will see very few stockers and bonders in Florida this winter. The boys got their winter tan around the ticker in October. The terrific heat turned Wall street into the world's biggest water blister.

The advantage of winter golf over summer is that there are more alibis. You are allowed to tee up on the fairways. If you can reach one.

It seems that the average golfer would be content with his August duffering and call the game off when the blizzards are whistling through the direction flags.

But, once a golfer, always a charter member. And the boys will be out there in January playing their usual game which adds up as if they were driving with soft-boiled eggs and putting with chestnut burrs.

It's useless to extract a promise by force unless you are prepared to keep up the pressure of compulsion indefinitely.

A LETTER FROM MAGDALEN

By Herbert Kaufman

THERE are a few immortal letters. Madame de Stael's and Voltaire's will hold a-prop the doors of royal France when the last palace stone is resolved to sand.

So long as ink marks pathways into yesterday, the gracious sentences of Chesterfield will lead us back to Georgian pump rooms, and preserve Mayfair in its pompous prime.

Amid such illustrious company, HER halting lines have little place. And yet they seem to me, because of very piteousness, perhaps the saddest words that disillusion and despair ever penned.

I often picture her laboriously shaping the childish script. Here and there a patiently shaded capital is blurred. For the tear-blistered paper is just a leaf torn from the cheapest of pencil tablets.

SHE asked for nothing—she did not even sign a name.

An indistinct postmark defeated all attempts to find her.

And the confidence, so plainly begged by self-respecting anonymity, is not violated through the present disclosure of her sordid secret.

Where and what she is today, God only knows.

It was April when the letter came. Spring was rampant in the air—teasing Nature out of winter desponds to lift head and take hope anew.

The faint scent of eager grasses, blent with popping apple blossoms, swept the room. Companies of grackles frolicked on the lawn, whirling and wheeling and bullying the robins away from their established hunting grounds.

THEN the mail brought this:

"Dear Sir: I enjoy reading your sermons. I am still a young woman, who was betrayed at the age of thirteen, and, having a child to support, did not live as well as I might. But I thoroughly hate wrong-living. Society don't want me and the sporting class of people don't want me (unless I do their way.) My relatives don't want me. I can't get honorable work to save my life. If I go to a strange place, 'What's your name and references?' Society forbids taking your life. Besides, I think that is so cowardly. If I didn't truly want to lead a decent, honest life, I wouldn't care so much. The baby is playing with my tablet and I am trying to write. She is the sweetest little doll on earth. "A Discouraged One."

A bit of glamorous fustian is upon my desk—one of those usual Yule things—tinkling with the echo of vanished sleigh-bells—full of log-crackle and Santa Claus appeal—a fabric of tinsel phrases, which dulled into tawdry clap-trap, as I suddenly recalled this letter.

AND so I'm writing about HER, instead—confident that the Star which led the way to Bethlehem still shines to guide Wise Men to other mangers.

And also into shadows, where broken-winged butterlies cower, famished and deserted, beside poverty-choked Christmas chimneys.

Civilization is a smirking lie, and religion, a hypocrite, while organized society abandons such as her to Puritan contempt and contemptible Puritanism.

The whips of scorn are not for child Madonnas.

If it is true that one so young, so resourceless, so dismayed and betrayed, so prematurely outcast, can have no haven, reach no helping hand, then every moral force that presumes to lift us from the mires of stupidity and intolerance has failed the Magdalen.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

BEATRICE CURTIS BROWN has written a strong book for weak people. It is called, "ALAS, QUEEN ANNE."

It is the story of a woman who became ruler of England 200 years ago—

BUT WHO NEVER BECAME RULER OF HERSELF.

Strangely enough, for all its trappings of royalty, it might be the story of any common, muddled person today . . . of you, or of me, of the Jones family. It is a text book of bewildered human life and how it gets that way.

Queen Anne had great opportunities, great responsibilities... but she was never able to meet any of them. Her life moved through an amazing series of circumstances, but it never quite "clicked" with any of the circumstances.

It never quite clicked because, somehow, she always side-stepped action at the crucial moment.

She started by being afraid of life....as most young people do. And she continued to be afraid of life to the day of her death. She was always looking for escape.... and finding it.

She found escape in the flattery of those around her....

In the comfort of known scenes....

In the gambling table....

In plots and counter-plots....

In self-pity....

In sudden squalls of anger and bullying tyranny that were simply a mask to hide the childish fear that always troubled her....

In a thousand alibis and excuses....

And when everything else failed her, she found escape in DREAMS.

She wasn't a bad character, or a good character....SHE WAS SIMPLY A CHARACTER THAT DIDN'T JELL.

She never firmed up into maturity, in spite of long experience with the world . . . in spite of motherhood, wifehood, queenship . . . she insisted on remaining a child.

Time after time she had a chance to grow up . . . a chance to act like an adult . . . but always she took refuge in her childish impulses. And so her life became a flabby futility.

One sentence sums up the whole book, "SHE HAD NOT BEEN EDUCATED FOR HEROISM."

That sentence would undoubtedly have surprised Queen Anne as much as it may surprise you. Like most of us, she did not think that heroism requires education. She thought that heroism was something that just happened. She was sure that when the time came she would be heroic. But she never was, for her character had never been trained along those lines.

SHE HAD NEVER TRAINED HERSELF TO MAKE DECISIONS AND STICK BY THEM.

SHE HAD NEVER TRAINED HERSELF TO FACE REALITY AND NOT DUCK.

She had always ducked. She had always ducked the scores of trivial crises which we all must meet each day. And so, when the great tests of her life came, she ducked those too.

She became a coward, not because she WANTED to be a coward, but because she didn't have the spunk and understanding to face each emergency when it arose. Cowardice "snuk up on her" slowly, insidiously, as a habit . . . as cowardice has a way of doing.

She wasn't very useful as a queen. She should be tremendously useful as an Awful Example.

Text for Today

Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel.—Isaiah vii:14.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE second consists of the (land-living) tortoises and (aquatic) turtles, their bodies encased in hard, protective shell into which in some but not all types, the head and limbs can be withdrawn. The third is by far the largest and most varied order, and includes the snakes and lizards—the rattlesnakes, cobras, kraits, pythons, geckos, skinks, chameleons, monitors, iguanas, slow-worms, and a host of others.

Finally, the fourth order contains one genus only—the lizard-like animal, Sphenodon, which is sufficiently distinct in its internal anatomy to be put in an order by itself.

H. G. Wells

With the extinct reptiles—twenty orders of them—we shall deal more fully later on. Most of the extinct reptiles, like the survivors of the group, were terrestrial, but some, the ichthyosaurs, plesiosaurs and mosasaurs, lived like whales in the sea, and others, the pterodactyls, soared like bats by means of their elongated arms and fingers.

The great and varied group of dinosaurs included (besides a number of smaller forms) the largest known land animals—animals second only to the whale in size; some of them peaceful browsers of plants, others perhaps the fiercest and most terrible predatory creatures that the world has ever seen.

In that reptilian world of the past there may have been very different conditions from those prevalent today. Not only were the great animals of that time unprotected against wide variations of temperature, but the vegetation also was of a different kind.

There were no deciduous trees to shed their leaves in winter, if winter there was, and no conifers with a foliage able to resist injury from a heavy fall of snow. Nor were there grasses and flowers ripening seeds that could hibernate through a cold season. And all the surviving reptiles of today live either continuously in warm climates or with intermittent stages of winter torpor, for the summer sunshine.

They are extraordinarily like the vestiges of some ancient conservative aristocracy in a world of new conditions and more energetic newcomers.

3D. THE LINKING AMPHIBIANS.

FROGS and salamanders are often classified by the uninitated as reptiles, together with lizards and other cold-blooded vertebrates. But they are not so.

They belong to a very different class, the Amphibia—a class which is interesting because it sits on the fence that divides the lunged and limbed from the gilled and finned, the air-breathing mammals, birds and reptiles from the water-breathing fishes.

It is a class of vast antiquity, but never has it displayed the variety and abundance of the mammals and birds of recent times, or of reptiles in their prime. Amphibia may be recognized by their smooth, moist skins, which lack either hair, feathers, or scales.

This naked skin is one of the reasons why (with one or two rare and specialized exceptions) an amphibian cannot venture far from moist places; possessing neither the dry scales of a reptile nor air-jacket of a bird or mammal he has no protection against water loss.

Sometimes on very hot days one finds mummified frogs lying on roads—frogs which have ventured into the desert of the road and have dried up before they could find their way off it again.

Two of the three living orders of amphibians are well-known. The first, the frogs and toads, are tailless, and have long powerful hind limbs by means of which they leap or swim.

The second, the newts and salamanders, swim by fish-like, sideways wriggling of the body, which tapers behind into a long tail they generally have four limbs which they use for crawling on land, but in some forms the limbs are very small or even absent and together.

The third order includes a few rare burrowing forms, having worm-like bodies and lacking both tail and limbs.

Nearly all amphibians spend at least a part of their lives in water. They have a fish infancy and an air-breathing adult life. The reader is of course familiar with the life-history of the common frog.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Men in New York are doing more "window shopping" than women. Along Fifth, Madison and Park avenues as well as Broadway you see them idling in front of window displays all hours of the day. Merchants have found men the most impulsive of all buyers.

It used to be a window was dressed almost solely for Milady. Once in a while something would be on view for the masculine eye. But not often. Today it is almost reversed. Eight out of ten windows in the shopping zone are for the male buyer.

Among famous gentlemen who are chronic window snoopers are: Otto Khan, Irvin Cobb, Clarence Mackey, Gatti-Casazzi, John Golden, Charles Dana Gibson, John McK. Bowman, John D. Rockefeller, Will C. Hogg, Ring Lardner and Arthur Hopkins.

Set-ups for drinking bouts always lure men to windows. They gaze longingly at assortments of highball, cordial and delicately flanged champagne glasses. Also cocktail shakers in dull and light silver in futuristic and mid-Victorian designs. Miniature bars, shiny brass rails, etc., are on view, too.

Almost every jewelry house has its special pocket flask display—flasks in silver, black enamel and even in solid gold with initials encrusted in chip diamonds. They are those, too, inlaid with camels and drinking scenes priced from $75 to $1,500.

Cigaret cases and fancy pocket lighters offer another magnetic exhibit. There are humidors for the drawing room filagreed in mother of pearl and still others releasing a grand opera aria from a hidden music box when the lid is lifted. These sell for as high as $3,000.

One de luxe shop has a complete gambling cabinet—containing everything from dice to roulette. The great house of Cartier's has gold coins with "Heads" on one side and "Tails" on the other for parlor matching. Golf, hockey, cane and polo windows are high lights, too, in the galaxy.

As one of the ardent window peepers it seems to me nothing has the power to coagulate a group of passers-by like a window of frolicsome puppies. Birds and tanks of gold fish have a lure, but not so pronounced. A display of ship models arrests the eyes of the middle-aged as well as youth.

I used to be drawn to a window of crawling, live lobsters in a Forty-fifth street sea food place. It was interesting to watch the ladies who would invariably stop indulge a quick involuntary shudder—and hurry on.

* * *

It was Dickens, or if not Dickens some one who thought few relaxations equalled a comfortably drawing pipe and an idle hour in front of a curio shop window. Bowery pawn shops offer a similar jinkle jumble, but they are often depressing with here and there a pledged glass eye, a gold tooth or artificial limb.

* * *

An after dinner pleasantry of the season comes from England with the approval of the Prince of Wales, who has installed the game in his town house. It is called Puff Billiards and requires chiefly bellows-like lungs and a practised eye. It is played on a round table with four pockets and the idea is to blow a small cork ball into the various pockets with the minimum of puffs. I know one gentleman who does not care for it. He blew out his uppers trying a difficult shot.

* * *

Add perils of New York streets: An author declares that an idea for a novel came to him suddenly while crossing crowded Forty-second street at Fifth avenue.

* * *

Speaking of literary ideas, a magazine editor last week received a short story from a chorus girl which began: "His wife, poor thing, was an invalid and grew invalider as the days went by."

* * *

"For years," writes a gentleman in Toledo, "I did not read your column because I heard you wore spats. Recently I have been following you and you are not half bad."

Gone is the ancient prejudice! Progress has been made.

On the slant of Coogan's Bluff there is an old-fashioned spring, to which a trickle of people is always mounting—a "back home" touch few can resist.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOUNG man, if you would, you might learn much from the older man in your department.

You may be a faster worker, more modern in technical ideas, but that old fellow knows a lot more about the fine points of the work than you have learned. His instruction was more carefully carried out than in the hurried course you followed. He gave longer and deeper study to perfect himself in departments of the work which were important in his day and which comprise the basic principles of good work—good production, today.

His experience and years to gain information have brought him in touch with facts that you will not have gained for many years to come.

Has not the fact that you have been elevated to what you consider an important position swelled your head?

Don't you feel superior to that older man who has been demoted?

As a result your opinion is that you have little to learn from him.

As a fact, you are missing many opportunities to gain knowledge that would greatly benefit you.

Many times you will wish you knew more than you do.
